Wraps Will Be Off When Van Fleet Testifies On Korea War Deadlock

Public To Receive Censored Version

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Congressional leaders said today they have been assured the wraps will be off when Gen. James A. Van Fleet tells the lawmakers this week how he thinks the Korean War could be won.

An influential administration official, who didn't want to be quoted by name, said the former Eighth Army commander will be under no restraints except those he imposes on himself in testifying before Senate and House committees.

"He is free to talk all he wants," this official said. "There will be no wraps on him at all."

Van Fleet said when he left his combat command in Korea and again on his arrival in San Francisco that "certainly" the Eighth Army could wage a successful offensive. He added that the military deadlock in Korea was "of our choosing and not imposed by the enemy."

Busy Week Ahead

The retiring general has a busy week ahead of him, starting with a White House luncheon Tuesday with President Eisenhower and lawmakers, an appearance before the House Armed Services Committee Wednesday, testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee Thursday and a possible discussion with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Friday.

Van Fleet's testimony on Korea will be given behind closed doors but Chairman Saltonstall (R-Mass) said the Senate armed services group plans to make public excerpts as it did with the testimony of Gen. Douglas MacArthur two years ago.

"I have asked Secretary of Defense Wilson to furnish us with a military expert who can delete security information from the testimony and then we will make it available to the public," Saltonstall said.

Statement Whets Interest

Saltonstall added he assumes that Van Fleet will be free, under those conditions, to discuss highly secret matters with the committee.

Van Fleet's statement that the military stalemate in Korea is of U. S. choosing has whetted the lawmakers' interest in hearing his opinion of how it could be broken.

It has caused circulation of some reports that Van Fleet did not always see eye to eye with the joint chiefs of staff in directing the war there.

The general and President Eisenhower, both members of the West Point class of 1915, are warm friends and the President was represented as looking forward to a thorough briefing on Korean conditions.

Van Fleet Says He Has No Korean Plan

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., March 1 (AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet said here today that he has no report or plan to give the President or the Congress on the Korean situation.

He said in a press conference that his 22 months as commander of the Eighth Army in Korea are "a matter of history. I have no report, nothing to submit except to be available to answer questions."

Van Fleet came here on the way from the West Coast to Washington where he is scheduled to see President Eisenhower and appear before Senate and House committees.

Teacher Interrupts Murder Play Rehearsal, Kills Friend

SUNDOWN, Tex., March 1 (AP)—A country school teacher—a deadly marksman who boasts he can hit a running coyote with ease—was freed on bond today in a shooting which placed grim reality in the center of eerie make-believe surroundings.

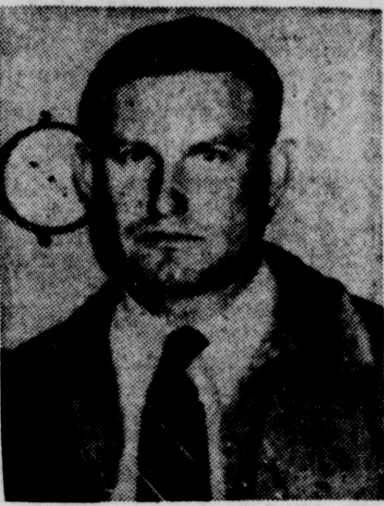

Jack Killingsworth, 29, interrupted a murder play rehearsal Friday night to kill Richard McChristial, 37, a friend he accused of forcing his wife to make love.

Both men were teachers at the high school in this little town on the edge of the high plains of West Texas. McChristial was one of the stars of the faculty play, "Meet the Body."

Killingsworth told officers and reporters yesterday full details of the shooting—and the events that led to it. Sometimes he showed remorse. At other times, none.

He said he "went crazy" when his wife told him the family friend had forced her to make love to him.

Killingsworth said he took a wild

President Back In Capital After Brief Vacation

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—President Eisenhower returned to Washington tonight after a long week-end vacation of golf at Augusta, Ga.

His plane landed at Washington National Airport at 6:45 p.m., EST. The President was asked, as he left the plane:

"Did you have a good time at Augusta, Mr. President?"

"You bet, wonderful," he replied with a smile.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower and others in the presidential party then drove to the White House.

Ike, Van Fleet To Meet

Tuesday he will confer with Gen. James A. Van Fleet, who is returning to Washington from command of the Eighth Army in Korea. After Van Fleet's report on the Korean War, he and Eisenhower will lunch with a group of Pentagon officials and a congressional delegation.

Eisenhower flew to Augusta Thursday afternoon and has golfed daily since then at the Augusta National Club. Aides reported him relaxed and in excellent spirits, although much less than satisfied about his golf score.

Attends Early Church

He told newsmen yesterday he shot "about a 96" for 18 holes, 24 strokes over par. And he added wryly that unless he improved he was going to have a regulation put into effect making it "against the law" for anyone to ask about his score.

The President got out on the course today shortly after he and Mrs. Eisenhower returned from a specially arranged service at 8:45 a.m. at the Reid Memorial Presbyterian Church.

The Sunday service usually is held at 11:15 a.m., but the pastor, Rev. Massey Mott Heltzel, volunteered to move it ahead 2½ hours for the President.

South Koreans Smash Back Red Assault On Hill

SEOUL, Monday, March 2 (AP)—Chinese Communists hurled a heavy artillery barrage and a stiff company-sized attack at Capitol Hill on the Korean Central Front Sunday but were smashed back by South Korean defenders in a bitter 50-minute fight.

Four lighter Communist punches were tossed at the Central and Western Front lines but each was repulsed by Eighth Army troops.

In the air, Allied warplanes swarmed over North Korea, pounding at Red supply networks and troop concentrations while Sabre jets patrolled the Manchurian frontier. However, Communist MIG fighters made no attempt to interfere, pilots reported.

Talbot In Tokyo

Harold Talbot, new secretary of the Air Force, landed in Tokyo Sunday with retired air Gen. Carl Spaatz for a tour of Korean air bases.

Talbot told reporters he and the former air chief of staff came "just to look."

The Air Force disclosed Sunday it lost 16 warplanes over North Korea in February, including two Sabres shot down in air combat, five planes lost to anti-aircraft fire and nine due to "other causes," presumably mechanical trouble.

While losing two Sabres in combat, the swift U. S. interceptors shot down 25 MIGs, the Air Force said.

784 Planes Lost By U. N.

The Air Force said it has lost 784 planes—711 U. S. planes and 73 attached foreign aircraft—since the start of the war. The Navy reported its total losses, including Marine aircraft, as 1,033 last month, making at least 1,817 U. N. plane losses.

The over-all figure did not include Air Force losses behind the lines.

During the same period the Red Air Force, which does not engage in more than interceptor work over Mig Alley in Northeast Korea, has lost at least 782 planes.

Politicos Map Plans For '54

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—So narrow are the Republican majorities in this Congress that campaign leaders are already mapping out prospective close states and districts for 1954 battlegrounds.

Democrats need only a net gain of two in the Senate and less than half a dozen in the House to win back the control which President Eisenhower helped Republicans to capture last November.

There will be no presidential candidate to swell the vote for individual Senate and House candidates next year.

The Democrats will have another advantage in the old tradition which shows that a minority party usually gains in mid-term elections. This has been broken only once in this century, in 1934 when the New Deal was riding a popular upsurge and gained 10 Senate and nine House seats.

Republicans are hoping that by November, 1954, the Eisenhower program will be finding such popular favor that they, too, will break the ancient precedent and prevent a Democratic comeback.

They are not just resting on hope, however. Every meeting of GOP workers since the election has been marked by moderate self-praise and warnings of what could happen if the party is not alert.

Democrats are looking to Kentucky, Michigan and Massachusetts—and possibly California and New Hampshire—as perhaps their best opportunities for overturning Republican seats in the Senate next year.

Republicans, who now have only 48 senators seated compared with 47 Democrats and one independent, think their best chances for gains lie in Delaware, Minnesota, Wyoming, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Montana and New Mexico.

Backs Butter Bargain

NEW YORK, March 1 (AP)—A leading New York butter dealer today urged the federal government to institute "butter bargain days" and give away a pound of surplus butter with every pound sold.

The proposal was made by Fred C. Lowenfels, president of the Hotel Bar Butter Company of New York, in a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

Twins Separated Since Family Spat In 1920 Reunited

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 1 (AP)—A couple of 65-year-old look-alikes met here yesterday for the first time since a family spat separated them 33 years ago.

It was a tearful yet happy reunion for twin sisters—Mrs. Ruth Stanley of Indianapolis and Mrs. Pearl Coshaw of Aurora, Ill.—who agreed they had let "a silly bit of talk" cause their estrangement in 1920.

Mrs. Stanley told reporters that her daughter prevailed on her to write to her sister last week and suggest a reconciliation. Mrs. Coshaw wired back, "I'll be on the train Saturday."

The twins were reluctant to discuss their misunderstanding, but marvelled at the appearance of each other.

"I'm the economy-sized twin and she's the regular size," Mrs. Stanley declared.

Gen. Taylor Confident 8th Could Stop Reds

SEOUL, Monday, March 2 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor today expressed confidence his multinational U. S. Eighth Army could withstand any assault the million-man Communist forces in Korea might launch.

The general, in his first private interview since taking command of the Eighth Army Feb. 11, said his troops were in the strongest entrenched positions of any army since World War I.

Taylor said he saw no immediate end in sight for the two and a half year war.

Democratic Lineup For 1954 Maryland Election Forming

ANNAPOLIS, March 1 (AP)—The Democratic Party's lineup for the 1954 elections in Maryland may be well formed before the General Assembly adjourns at the end of the month.

Informed political observers predicted today the next four and a half weeks could decide if the Democrats go into the next campaign with a unified front or as two factions split even more deeply than after the Lane-Mahoney gubernatorial primary in 1950.

Maneuvering to halt the widening breach between the recognized "party-liners" and a group of rebellious "young Turks" in the Senate appears already underway. How successful the move will be is anybody's guess.

A tax reduction program worked out by the 11 insurgent Democratic senators was met by out-and-out rebuffs from the seven "party-line" Democratic senators led by President Della (D-Balto 6th)—until Comptroller Tawes stepped into the picture.

Mayer Says EDC Safeguard From German Menace

PARIS, March 1 (AP)—Premier Rene Mayer said today the European Defense Community is France's last chance to prevent the re-birth of German militarism. He made this statement in a hard-hitting speech at Setif, in Algeria, which underlined the necessity of ratifying the EDC Treaty.

While Mayer was tracing the safeguards against the re-emergence of the German general staff which the treaty provides, wartime Free French leader Gen. Charles de Gaulle, chief of the right-wing Rally of the French People, was shouting in Paris:

Treaty "Unacceptable"

"With or without protocols, the European Defense Community Treaty is, in its form and in its spirit, entirely unacceptable."

The general, speaking before his party's national council, was referring to protocols to the EDC Treaty which the Mayer government has proposed in an effort to make the pact palatable to the French Parliament when it acts on its ratification.

While the Premier and the general were speaking, former Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, who gave the original impetus to the unification of Europe, was quoted as saying "if we fail because of our fault, if we abandon the work we have undertaken, we betray not only our own future, but we deceive the hope that all Europe has placed in us."

No Action Before June

Writing in the weekly "Voix Lorraine," he said: "Europe will develop, or perish. If it develops, it will be done either by us, or against us, by others. It is necessary that all the French realize this, in Parliament and elsewhere."

Arab Nations Will Get More U. S. Attention

Israel To Be Denied Special Privileges

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration is reported ready to try a new approach in Middle East policy. It involves paying more attention to Arab countries and less to Israel.

Top officials are reported convinced this change is necessary if the Western bloc is to counter vastly-increased Russian pressure in the area.

The new aim will be to treat all Mideast countries scrupulously alike and to avoid any special aid program or privileges for Israel.

Under the Democratic administration, the United States gave the infant Jewish republic more financial and technical aid than all the Arab states combined.

Israel Loans Exceed Arabs'

A total of $229,516,000 in loans, grants and credits was extended to Syria, Lebanon, Egypt, Iraq and Hashemite Jordan in the last seven years.

In four years alone, Israel was allotted a total of $276,517,000, much of it in the form of grants appropriated by Congress.

Congress, which traditionally has been partial to Israel, could possibly upset the new policy before it even gets started. Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), among others, has been an enthusiastic advocate of aid to Israel in the past.

This could lead to a clash with top administration officials, including Secretary of State Dulles who is known to believe the past Democratic policy toward the Mideast was all wrong.

Argument For New Policy

But, responsible officials who hope to translate the new policy into action believe they can persuade Congress to view the Middle East in terms of the whole region and not Israel alone.

Their argument will go something like this:

Russia has started a major political and propaganda offensive to win over the Arab nations and possibly grab off the rich oil fields of Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait along with the strategic Suez area.

The best hope of thwarting this plot is to put new drive into the West's stalled plans for creating a Middle East defense alliance which includes most Arab nations.

This will be virtually impossible as long as the Arab nations continue to believe that American policy will always be heavily pro-Israel.

Four Lose Lives In Baltimore Fire

BALTIMORE, March 1 (AP)—Three children suffocated and their father died in a three-story plunge early today when fire swept their west Baltimore home.

Their pregnant mother and a fourth child escaped.

Dead were Willie Murray, 28, and his three sons, 3, 4 and 7 years old.

The mother, 26-year-old Mrs. Aletha Murray, suffered brush burns and possible internal injuries. The only survivor, 5-year-old Bertha Murray, suffered severe head injuries.

A cab driver told police he saw three persons trying to escape from the blazing home and went to turn in an alarm. When he returned he saw Murray lying on the sidewalk, his skull crushed.

Nearby lay Mrs. Murray and the girl.

Police said the three apparently had leaped from the dwelling with Mrs. Murray landing on her husband and the daughter striking the sidewalk.

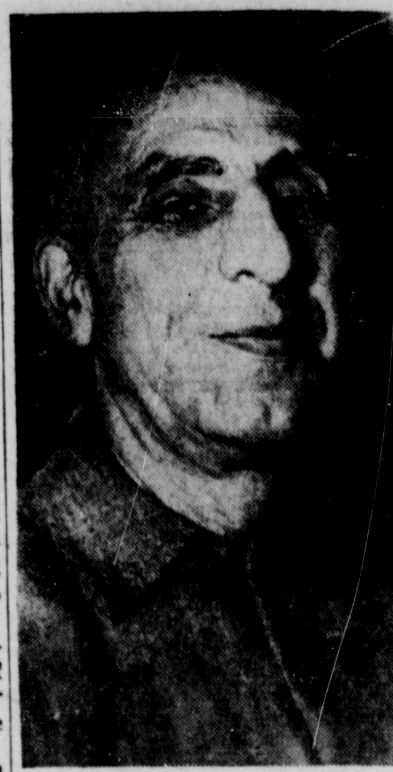

Firemen found the bodies of the three boys huddled in a rear bedroom on the third floor.

The blaze was attributed to explosion of a kerosene stove in the first-floor living room.

Snow And Sleet Storm Is Racing Eastward

(By The Associated Press)

A giant storm Sunday covered a wide area of the nation's mid-section and raced eastward accompanied by 40-mile-an-hour winds. It dumped from four to eight inches of snow and sleet in some places.

STORM CENTER—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh (above) yesterday was fighting to restore his grip over Iran while mobs in the streets turned against him with cries of "Death or the Shah." Mossadegh was chased out of his house Saturday by mobs. He took refuge in Parliament.

Kean To Sponsor Social Security Extension Bill

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—A Republican congressman announced today he will sponsor a bill to extend social security to about 10 million additional workers and "fulfill the promise President Eisenhower made during the campaign."

The move by Rep. Kean (R-NJ) seemed certain to smack against the views of some other Republican House leaders who favor a broad overhaul rather than any immediate extension of the social security system.

Eisenhower has listed extension of social security as one of his urgent legislative programs for this year.

But Rep. Reed (R-NY) chairman of the ways and means committee which handles social security bills, said he doubts the wisdom of expanding the system now.

Curtis To Make Study

Reed has appointed Rep. Curtis (R-Neb) chairman of a special subcommittee to make a complete new study of the system and as Reed put it, "get the bugs out of it." Reed said he didn't expect this study to be completed in time to enact legislation this year.

Curtis, in a minority report on a bill which added about 11 million persons to the system in 1950, termed the present plan "grossly unsound... ineffective... hopeless... totally unmoral."

The Nebraska proposed a substitute system which would pay uniform benefits to everyone at retirement age or over, without regard to wage levels, need or contributions.

These benefits would be financed by adding a flat percentage rate to income tax returns. Each year's benefits would be paid from the current year's revenue.

How Present System Works

Under the present system, a 1½ per cent payroll tax on both workers and employers goes into a reserve fund. Benefits are paid at age 65 on a scale according to contributions.

Needy persons who were too old to build up adequate insurance benefits get public welfare grants. Curtis' proposal would abolish the welfare payments.

More than 60 million persons covered by the insurance plan now.

Chinese Nationalists Pour Across Border Into Burma

RANGOON, Burma, March 1 (AP)—The English-language daily, The Nation, reported today Chinese Nationalist troops are pouring into Burma from militia training schools in Yunnan, across the border in Communist China.

In a dispatch from a correspondent touring the troubled Eastern Burma area, the paper said "a constant stream of recruits is being discharged into the KMT (Koumintang or Nationalist) reservoir in Burma" from these training grounds.

Estimating the Nationalist forces in Burma as having doubled, the correspondent said they have moved far into the country. He did not estimate their number, but some sources previously have set the number at from 10,000 to 20,000.

(The bulk of these escaped into Burma after the Chinese Reds overran the Chinese mainland. There have been no previous re-

Aging Premier Fights To Keep Grip On Nation

Mossadegh Fires Army Chief Of Staff

TEHRAN, Iran, March 1 (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh threw out his Army chief of staff today and fought stubbornly to restore his grip over Parliament and the country while mobs in the streets turned against him with cries of "Death or the Shah."

Gen. Mahmud Baharmast, one of the scores of high Army brass to be fired by Mossadegh in recent weeks, was charged with failing to act promptly to quell mobs which chased the pajama-clad Premier out of his house yesterday. He was replaced by Taghi Riahi, under secretary of defense.

The situation was confusing and contradictory. The outcome still appeared to be touch and go.

Mossadegh indicated he was trying to wait out the storm for at least another day.

Premier Forced To Flee

Yesterday the aging Premier was forced to flee in his pajamas from the back door of his house when mobs burst in at the front door.

Mossadegh's recent foe, Ayatollah Seyed Abolghasem Kashani, high Moslem priest and Parliament speaker, apparently used the impending departure of young Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi from the country to stir up mob action. Mossadegh's enemies, probably fearing he would use the royal absence to tighten his rule, forced the Shah to cancel his trip.

The Majlis (lower house of Parliament) held another session today behind doors barred and guarded to keep out mobs still screaming "Death or the Shah."

Twenty-eight pro-Mossadegh deputies, calling themselves the New National Movement, boycotted the session, but announced afterward they were determined to remain in the Parliament Building continuously.

Demands Clarification

Earlier, pro-Mossadegh demonstrators shouting "Death or Mossadegh" had massed in front of the Parliament Building. There were sporadic riots and clashes in the bazaar section of Tehran, where pro-Kashani supporters have appeared to be in the ascendancy lately. Bazaars were closed again today, usually a sign of trouble. Tudeh (Communist) groups also were trying to organize demonstrations.

Appearing in his pajamas before an extraordinary session of Parliament last night Mossadegh angrily demanded that the situation be clarified within 48 hours by a vote of confidence so that the government could carry on. Otherwise, he threatened, he would "go to the people" in a referendum and the deputies could "bring anybody you like to power."

GOP Ready To Hand Out Grass Roots Jobs

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Republican National Chairman Wesley Roberts said tonight the GOP expects to start this month handing out the grass roots jobs now that most of the top administration posts have been filled.

There has been a flood of nominations and applications for the lesser appointments, Roberts added, but they've had to wait while President Eisenhower picked his Cabinet and department heads.

(The bulk of these escaped into Burma after the Chinese Reds overran the Chinese mainland. There have been no previous reports that the Nationalists have established training schools in Yunnan, where the Chinese Communist have strong military posts along the border.

(Dispatches from Formosa have said that only time will tell what part these troops will play in Chiang Kai-shek's plans to regain the mainland.)

(Reliable sources in the Burma frontier town of Kengtung have reported that Nationalist units crossed into Yunnan in January and fought two pitched battles. The Nationalists were said to have suffered heavy losses in both clashes.)

The Nation's correspondent said fresh Nationalist troops also arrived from Thailand. He said Burmese intelligence officers believe they are planning to extend their operations through the Southern Shan states by staging drives against Burmese troops from three points in Kengtung. He said the first thrust was repelled.

Weather Forecast

Snow today probably changing to rain; tomorrow occasional rain mixed with snow.

Gen. Taylor Confident 8th Could Stop Reds

SEOUL, Monday, March 2 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor today expressed confidence his multinational U. S. Eighth Army could withstand any assault the million-man Communist forces in Korea might launch.

The general, in his first private interview since taking command of the Eighth Army Feb. 11, said his troops were in the strongest entrenched positions of any army since World War I.

Taylor said he saw no immediate end in sight for the two and a half year old war.

Ships Collide In Fog

HAMBURG, Germany, March 1 (AP)—Six ships were damaged in collisions and at least six were grounded as dense fog crippled sea and air traffic from Britain to the North German coast today.

Democratic Lineup For 1954 Maryland Election Forming

ANNAPOLIS, March 1 (AP)—The Democratic Party's lineup for the 1954 elections in Maryland may be well formed before the General Assembly adjourns at the end of the month.

Informed political observers predicted today the next four and a half weeks could decide if the Democrats go into the next campaign with a unified front or as two factions split even more deeply than after the Lane-Mahoney gubernatorial primary in 1950.

Maneuvering to halt the widening breach between the recognized "party-liners" and a group of rebellious "young Turks" in the Senate appears already underway. How successful the move will be is anybody's guess.

A tax reduction program worked out by the 11 insurgent Democratic senators was met by out-and-out rebuffs from the seven "party-line" Democratic senators led by President Della (D-Balto 6th)—until Comptroller Tawes stepped into the picture.

Tawes, who worked behind the scenes at the start of the General Assembly to get Della elected over determined objections by the insurgents, told a late-working Senate Finance Committee he thought the rebels' automatic tax reduction plan was a "splendid thing"—with reservations.

Arab Nations Will Get More U. S. Attention

Israel To Be Denied Special Privileges

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration is reported ready to try a new approach in Middle East policy. It involves paying more attention to Arab countries and less to Israel.

Top officials are reported convinced this change is necessary if the Western bloc is to counter vastly-increased Russian pressure in the area.

The new aim will be to treat all Middle East countries scrupulously alike and to avoid any special aid program or privileges for Israel.

Under the Democratic administration, the United States gave the infant Jewish republic more financial and technical aid than all the Arab states combined.

Israel Loans Exceed Arabs'

A total of $229,516,000 in loans, grants and credits was extended to Syria, Lebanon, Egypt, Iraq and Hashemite Jordan in the last seven years.

In four years alone, Israel was allotted a total of $276,517,000, much of it in the form of grants appropriated by Congress.

Congress, which traditionally has been partial to Israel, could possibly upset the new policy before it even gets started. Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), among others, has been an enthusiastic advocate of aid to Israel in the past.

This could lead to a clash with top administration officials, including Secretary of State Dulles who is known to believe the past Democratic policy toward the Mideast was all wrong.

Argument For New Policy
But, responsible officials who hope to translate the new policy into action believe they can persuade Congress to view the Middle East in terms of the whole region and not Israel alone.

Their argument will go something like this:

Russia has started a major political and propaganda offensive to win over the Arab nations and possibly grab off the rich oil fields of Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait along with the strategic Suez area.

The best hope of thwarting this plot is to put new drive into the West's stalled plans for creating a Middle East defense alliance which includes most Arab nations.

This will be virtually impossible as long as the Arab nations continue to believe that American policy will always be heavily pro-Israel.

Four Lose Lives In Baltimore Fire

BALTIMORE, March 1 (AP)—Three children suffocated and their father died in a three-story plunge early today when fire swept their west Baltimore home.

Their pregnant mother and a fourth child escaped.

Dead were Willie Murray, 28, and his three sons, 3, 4 and 7 years old.

The mother 26-year-old Mrs. Aletha Murray suffered brush burns and possible internal injuries. The only survivor, 5-year-old Bertha Murray, suffered severe head injuries.

A cab driver told police he saw three persons trying to escape from the blazing home and went to turn in an alarm. When he returned he saw Murray lying on the sidewalk, his skull crushed.

Nearly lay Mrs. Murray and the girl.

Police said the three apparently had leaped from the dwelling with Mrs. Murray landing on her husband and the daughter striking the sidewalk.

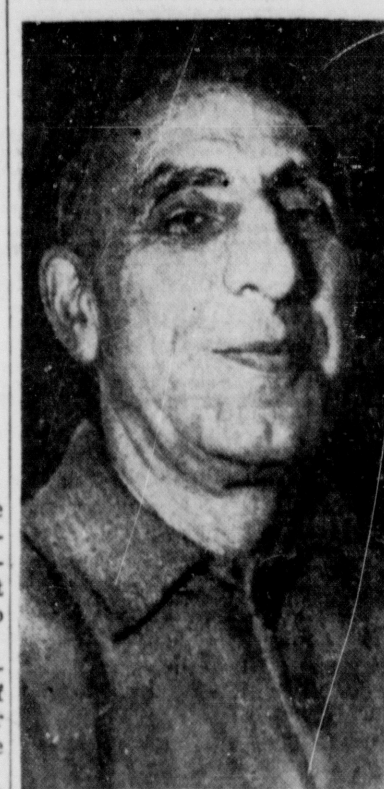

Firemen found the bodies of the three boys huddled in a rear bedroom on the third floor.

The blaze was attributed to explosion of a kerosene stove in the first-floor living room.

Snow And Sleet Storm Is Racing Eastward

(By The Associated Press)
A giant storm Sunday covered a wide area of the nation's mid-section and raced eastward accompanied by 40-mile-an-hour winds. It dumped from four to eight inches of snow and sleet in some places.

The storm, centered over Iowa at dusk, cut a diagonal swath from the Northern Rocky Mountains southeastward through Southern Illinois. By Monday morning it was expected to cover Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and dip slightly into Kentucky.

STORM CENTER — Premier Mohammad Mossadegh (above) yesterday was fighting to restore his grip over Iran while mobs in the streets turned against him with cries of "Death or the Shah."

Mossadegh was chased out of his house Saturday by mobs. He took refuge in Parliament.

Kean To Sponsor Social Security Extension Bill

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—A Republican congressman announced today he will sponsor a bill to extend social security to about 10 million additional workers and "fulfill the promise President Eisenhower made during the campaign."

The move by Rep. Kean (R-NJ) seemed certain to smack against the views of some other Republican House leaders who favor a broad overhaul rather than any immediate extension of the social security system.

Eisenhower has listed extension of social security as one of his urgent legislative programs for this year.

But Rep. Reed (R-NY) chairman of the ways and means committee which handles social security bills, said he doubts the wisdom of expanding the system now.

Curtis To Make Study
Reed has appointed Rep. Curtis (R-Neb) chairman of a special subcommittee to make a complete new study of the system and, as Reed put it, "get the bugs out of it."

Reed said he didn't expect this study to be completed in time to enact legislation this year.

Curtis, in a minority report on a bill which added about 11 million persons to the system in 1950, termed the present plan "grossly unsound... ineffective... hopeless... totally unmoral."

The Nebraska proposed a substitute system which would pay uniform benefits to everyone at retirement age or over, without regard to wage levels, need or contributions.

These benefits would be financed by adding a flat percentage rate to income tax returns. Each year's benefits would be paid from the current year's revenue.

How Present System Works
Under the present system, a 1½ per cent payroll tax on both workers and employers goes into a reserve fund. Benefits are paid at age 65 on a scale according to contributions.

Needy persons who were too old to build up adequate insurance benefits get public welfare grants. Curtis' proposal would abolish the welfare payments.

More than 60 million persons covered by the insurance plan now.

Chinese Nationalists Pour Across Border Into Burma

RANGOON, Burma, March 1 (AP)—The English-language daily, The Nation, reported today Chinese Nationalist troops are pouring into Burma from militia training schools in Yunnan, across the border in Communist China.

In a dispatch from a correspondent touring the troubled Eastern Burma area, the paper said "a constant stream of recruits is being discharged into the KMT (Kuomintang or Nationalist) reservoir in Burma" from these training grounds.

Estimating the Nationalist forces in Burma as having doubled, the correspondent said they have moved far into the country. He did not estimate their number, but the number previously have set the number at from 10,000 to 20,000.

(The bulk of these escaped into Burma after the Chinese Reds overran the Chinese mainland. There have been no previous reports that the Nationalists have established training schools in Yunnan, where the Chinese Communist have strong military posts along the border.)

(Dispatches from Formosa have said that only time will tell what part these troops will play in Chiang Kai-shek's plans to regain the mainland.)

(Reliable sources in the Burma frontier town of Kengtung have reported that Nationalist units crossed into Yunnan in January and fought two pitched battles. The Nationalists were said to have suffered heavy losses in both clashes.)

The Nation's correspondent said fresh Nationalist troops also arrived from Thailand. He said Burmese intelligence officers believe they are planning to extend their operations through the Southern Shan states by staging drives against Burmese troops from three points in Kengtung. He said the first thrust was repelled.

Aging Premier Fights To Keep Grip On Nation

Mossadegh Fires Army Chief Of Staff

TEHRAN, Iran, March 1 (AP)—Premier Mohammad Mossadegh threw out his Army chief of staff today and fought stubbornly to restore his grip over Parliament and the country while mobs in the streets turned against him with cries of "Death or the Shah."

Gen. Mahmud Bahramst, one of the scores of high Army brass to be fired by Mossadegh in recent weeks, was charged with failing to act promptly to quell mobs which chased the pajama-clad Premier out of his house yesterday. He was replaced by Taghi Riahi, under secretary of defense.

The situation was confusing and contradictory. The outcome still appeared to be touch and go.

Mossadegh indicated he was trying to wait out the storm for at least another day.

Premier Forced To Flee

Yesterday the aging Premier was forced to flee in his pajamas from the back door of his house when mobs burst in at the front door.

Mossadegh's recent foe, Ayatollah Seyed Abolghasem Kashani, high Moslem priest and Parliament speaker, apparently used the impending departure of young Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi from the country to stir up mob action. Mossadegh's enemies, probably fearing he would use the royal absence to tighten his rule, forced the Shah to cancel his trip.

The Majlis (lower house of Parliament) held another session today behind doors barred and guarded to keep out mobs still screaming "Death or the Shah."

Twenty-eight pro-Mossadegh deputies, calling themselves the New National Movement, boycotted the session, but announced afterward they were determined to remain in the Parliament Building continuously.

Demands Clarification
Earlier, pro-Mossadegh demonstrators shouting "Death or Mossadegh" had massed in front of the Parliament Building. There were sporadic riots and clashes in the bazaar section of Tehran, where pro-Kashani supporters have appeared to be in the ascendancy lately. Bazaars were closed again today, usually a sign of trouble. Tudeh (Communist) groups also were trying to organize demonstrations.

Appearing in his pajamas before an extraordinary session of Parliament last night Mossadegh angrily demanded that the situation be clarified within 48 hours by a vote of confidence so that the government could carry on. Otherwise, he threatened, he would "go to the people" in a referendum and the deputies could "bring anybody you like to power."

GOP Ready To Hand Out Grass Roots Jobs

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Republican National Chairman Wesley Roberts said tonight the GOP expects to start this month handing out the grass roots jobs now that most of the top administration posts have been filled.

There has been a flood of nominations and applications for the lesser appointments, Roberts added, but they've had to wait while President Eisenhower picked his Cabinet and department heads.

How Present System Works
Under the present system, a 1½ per cent payroll tax on both workers and employers goes into a reserve fund. Benefits are paid at age 65 on a scale according to contributions.

Needy persons who were too old to build up adequate insurance benefits get public welfare grants. Curtis' proposal would abolish the welfare payments.

Ridgeley Youth Gets Five Years In Theft Cases

A 16-year-old Ridgeley youth who admitted stealing five pistols from a local hardware store has been sentenced to five years in the Pruntytown (W. Va.) Reformatory for Boys.

Cumberland authorities reported that the stiff sentence was imposed Friday in Mineral County Court House at Keyser by Judge Harland Calhoun. The boy was charged with violating conditions of a parole handed down in 1950 for thievery.

Judge Calhoun ordered that the youth be incarcerated until he attains his twenty-first birthday, after which he will be turned over to police here on theft counts. A detainer has been filed.

Ridgeley and local authorities combined forces to nab the suspect February 11, about ten days after five .22 caliber guns were taken from the Wilson Hardware Company store on North Mechanic Street.

Ridgeley Police Commissioner Charles H. Fryer learned the weapons were in the youth's possession and picked him up for interrogation. The guns were recovered.

Further questioning unveiled the solution to other burglaries at the warehouse of Felix Half and Brothers, 23 Howard Street; C. D. Kenny Company and Baltimore Fidelity Company on Canal Street and the Spot Confectionery in Ridgeley. Only small change, two flashlights and some candy bars were stolen.

Evidence in the form of a perfectly matched heel print led to the youth's confession in three thefts here.

Foundations incorporate innovations to provide the figure styling demanded by the new, reedy silhouette.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

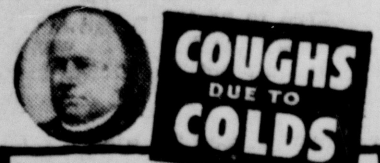

How to keep the figure within the bounds of the slimmer-than-ever silhouette which fashion demands for spring has brought in a flurry of letters asking what type foundations are best suited to the new, reedy styles. We took the problem straight to the highest authority, the Corset and Brassiere Association of America, to give you the most authentic answers to such problems. These experts suggest:

To take care of the "spare tire" you have several choices. Both girdles and pantie girdles, built up to reach the band of a bra give a long smooth look to the midriff. A girdle that comes just to the waist, worn with a longline bra, is one that is elasticized through the middle for comfort, gives the same effect. Or, you may prefer a corset with special elastic reinforcements in mid-section.

1953 Innovations
The special problem that is posed for heavy thighs by a columnar skirt is neatly solved by the new, longer pantie girdle. Since it is made in various weights of elastic, it is possible to choose one that not only gives the exact amount of control required but also allows freedom of movement and freedom from discomfort.

Innovations this year provide smoothing control for every unwanted curve with less boning than ever before. The firmest sort of control is now achieved for the abdomen through crossed elastic bands inserted within the fabric of a front panel, by reinforced elastic panels, bias-cut fabric sections or closely-spaced stitching—all with nary a stay.

Wide Variety Of New Books Is Added To Library Here

A wide variety of new books ranging from history to hunting and including new fiction titles have been added to the shelves at the Cumberland Free Public Library, according to Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian.

"Presidents' Sons" by J. J. Perling takes the reader down the byways of American history—many of them more revealing and more interesting than the well-traveled highways. This is lively history.

"Robert Fulton and the Submarine" by William Barclay Parsons

Man Returns After 43 Years

A native of Fort Ashby who left this section 43 years ago to settle in Colony, Kan., returned for his first visit in his native heath.

He is Golden B. Davis, 82, who came for the funeral of his brother-in-law, James H. Flanagan, who died Sunday in Fort Ashby. Davis was married to the former Miss Anna N. Flanagan of Fort Ashby. She died three years ago. The couple had two sons, both of Colony.

Davis remembers many of the oldtimers from this area and remarked that he had been a correspondent for the weekly paper, "The Alleganlian," which was published in Cumberland for many years until around the late 1920's when it ceased publication.

The Kansas was a son of the late M. T. Davis, who was a member of the School Board for the Frankfort District many years ago. Davis owns a dairy farm of several hundred acres in Kansas. He said modern machinery has made farming much easier than during former years when the chores were back-breaking. Davis said he has been more or less retired for the past few years, with his two sons operating the dairy farm.

is a record, published for the first time, asserting that Robert Fulton was unquestionably the first one to design a practical vessel capable of submerging and rising at will.

"Rocky Mountain Cities" by Ray B. West, Jr. is the story of the West in terms of its capitals, for the key to knowledge of the West lies in the understanding of its centers, not its fringes.

"Mountaineering in the Sierra Nevada" by Clarence King, written back in the 1860's is alive and vivid in its flavor for the reader today.

Regarded as the American classic of mountaineering, this book, aside from its value as a piece of genuine Americana, has many-sided interest: historical, scientific, and personal.

"Hunting the American Game Field" by L. A. Anderson answers all of the huntsman's practical questions on shooting and hunting.

Written by Edward Rowe Snow, "A Pilgrim Returns to Cape Cod" is a fascinating story of this interesting arm of America which juts out into the Atlantic Ocean.

"Introduction to Cartooning" by Richard Taylor is thoroughly sound and practical in instruction by one of America's greatest cartoonists.

New fiction titles include: "Troy Chimneys" by Margaret Kennedy, "Courage is not Given" by Drayton Mayrant, "In the House of the King" by Louis Zara and "The Golden Thread" by Louis DeWohl.

Wide Variety Of New Books Is Added To Library Here

A wide variety of new books ranging from history to hunting and including new fiction titles have been added to the shelves at the Cumberland Free Public Library, according to Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian.

"Presidents' Sons" by J. J. Perling takes the reader down the byways of American history—many of them more revealing and more interesting than the well-traveled highways. This is lively history.

"Robert Fulton and the Submarine" by William Barclay Parsons

is a record, published for the first time, asserting that Robert Fulton was unquestionably the first one to design a practical vessel capable of submerging and rising at will.

"Rocky Mountain Cities" by Ray B. West, Jr. is the story of the West in terms of its capitals, for the key to knowledge of the West lies in the understanding of its centers, not its fringes.

"Mountaineering in the Sierra Nevada" by Clarence King, written back in the 1860's is alive and vivid in its flavor for the reader today. Regarded as the American classic of mountaineering, this book, aside from its value as a piece of genuine Americana, has many-sided interest: historical, scientific, and personal.

"Hunting the American Game Field" by L. A. Anderson answers all of the huntsman's practical questions on shooting and hunting.

Written by Edward Rowe Snow, "A Pilgrim Returns to Cape Cod" is a fascinating story of this interesting arm of America which juts out into the Atlantic Ocean.

"Introduction to Cartooning" by Richard Taylor is thoroughly sound and practical in instruction by one of America's greatest cartoonists.

New fiction titles include: "Troy Chimneys" by Margaret Kennedy, "Courage is not Given" by Drayton Mayrant, "In the House of the King" by Louis Zara and "The Golden Thread" by Louis DeWohl.

Keyser Weather Prophet Beats Lowly Groundhog

KEYSER — Otis Johnson, local merchant, says he outscored the groundhog, 22 to 6, when it came to predicting weather in February.

His claim is that the weather presented on the last Friday will mark the type of weather the area will have for 15 days in the following month. He announced on the final Friday in January that good weather would prevail through 15 days of February, as on that date it was a beautiful sunny day. February presented 22 such days, allowing the remainder to the ground hog as his prophesy after the ground inhabitant had scurried away from his shadow on February 2.

Johnson said that March will be a typical month, adding that Friday was a day of samples, with rain, snow, sunshine and wind mixing throughout the day. That tends a customary month starting yesterday, of March winds, rains, pleasant sunny days and some snow.

He says he is banking on March proving that it can give about everything, and any of the things that happened on Friday will predominate for 15 March days.

Keyser Weather Prophet Beats Lowly Groundhog

KEYSER — Otis Johnson, local merchant, says he outscored the groundhog, 22 to 6, when it came to predicting weather in February.

His claim is that the weather presented on the last Friday will mark the type of weather the area will have for 15 days in the following month. He announced on the final Friday in January that good weather would prevail through 15 days of February, as on that date it was a beautiful sunny day. February presented 22 such days, allowing the remainder to the ground hog as his prophesy after the ground inhabitant had scurried away from his shadow on February 2.

Johnson said that March will be a typical month, adding that Friday was a day of samples, with rain, snow, sunshine and wind mixing throughout the day. That portends a customary month starting yesterday, of March winds, rains, pleasant sunny days and some snow.

He says he is banking on March proving that it can give about everything, and any of the things that happened on Friday will predominate for 15 March days.

IT'S A BREEZE To Saw a Board

Where you have your saw filed on our precision machine. They cut cleaner, easier, faster. Bring them in for quick service and expert work.

A Job Worth Doing

A report which suggests that $5,000,000,000 can be cut from the military budget without endangering the nation's security is clearly something which must not be given the "file and forget" treatment. So it is encouraging to have Charles E. Wilson, secretary of Defense, declare that the recommendations of the Citizens Advisory Commission on Utilization of Manpower in the Armed Services call for "authoritative action and decision."

This is no ordinary report which has been submitted by the commission. It is the result of painstaking investigation by a group of distinguished citizens, including not only business men but retired military officers. It is not concerned with over-all policy and it does not undertake to say how large a fighting force the country needs to meet the present emergency. It does, however, show how manpower is now being shamefully wasted and misused.

The statement by the commission that the armed services could operate effectively with 500,000 fewer men will of course stir the services to bitter protest. It is not their nature to surrender on a point like this or to yield any of their authority or substance.

If, therefore, anything is to come from this enterprise it must be the consequence of direct orders from the top and continued insistence that the orders be strictly obeyed. Considering the state of the nation's finances, this is a job that is well worth the doing, regardless of whose toes are stepped on.

Canada's Happy State

Americans with an eye on the absorbing drama in Washington which revolves around the question of cutting or not cutting taxes must have felt as though someone had hit them when they weren't looking. Behind their backs the Canadian government blithely announced an 11 per cent cut in personal income taxes and cuts of varying size in corporation and sales taxes, including the tax on cigarettes.

As Canadian Finance Minister Abbott explained, Canada is closing its books on another year of "prosperity without inflation." Americans may take a sharp rather than envious look at Canadian operations when they are told that the government to the north has been reducing its national debt by nearly $2,500,000,000 annually. A comparable feat in Washington would take a $30,000,000,000 chip off the national debt each year.

How do the Canadians do it? Well, they let their economy go free wheeling along with a minimum of controls and strings. Their defense outlay, proportionally, is less than half that of this country. They have had the good fortune to uncover tremendous natural resources, both in petroleum and uranium bearing ores, at a time when half the world is desperately looking for new sources. Hence there has been a tremendous influx of foreign capital, most of it from the United States. They have had record harvests, exports and consumer expenditures.

But who is to envy a man who parleys his possessions into a big stake and skims off the cream that is rightfully his?

Tornado Season

Destructive tornadoes have struck in Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama, causing much damage and loss of life, and they served as a grim reminder that man is never so helpless as when confronted by a tornado. Frequently an entire town is reduced to rubble with not more than a few minutes' warning.

Cyclone cellers were standard equipment in the early days in tornado country, but these are not of much benefit unless an individual happens to be near it waiting for something to happen when the twister strikes. So great is the destructive force of these meteorological phenomena that it is difficult to anticipate the possibility of one striking and prepare for the eventuality with any degree of success. Nothing that man can erect is immune to damage when it is in the path of a tornado, it seems.

The U. S. Weather Bureau has made elaborate preparations to issue warnings when tornadoes are believed to be imminent, but it is impossible to pinpoint the danger far enough in advance to warn prospective victims. The weather bureau at New Orleans issued warnings that tornadoes could be expected, which proved to be accurate, but it was impossible to predict where they would strike or exactly when.

Individuals living in tornado country, hearing over the radio that things looked ominous, might take cursory precautions, but man never believes that catastrophe will single him out for special attention until he is confronted by the stark reality.

Armor For Civilians

Maybe some day judges will intone: "Fifty dollars fine for a concealed deadly weapon and $50 for a concealed live-saving vest. Next case!"

The story is that the Navy and the Department of Justice are worrying about the possible sale of the new plastic chest armor to civilians. This is the device the Marines say is reducing by two-thirds the casualties in Korean fighting. The Philadelphia firm making it has been considering putting it on the market for "hunters, bank guards and policemen."

But a bullet-proof vest might have an appeal to bank robbers as well as bank guards. Maybe there is also some concern lest the product exported in large quantities might find its devious way into Communist armies.

But should a certain plastic be ruled out of general use merely because one of its properties is that it is bullet-proof? If Russia has the atom bomb, is the chest protector impossible of manufacture by the Reds? And if a bank robber really tries hard enough, won't he manage to get hold of a vest as well as a gun?

Restricting Treaties

Senator Bricker of Ohio has proposed a new constitutional amendment that would put stricter curbs on the President and the Senate in negotiating agreements with other countries. The American Bar Association agrees that something along this line should be done. Secretary of State Dulles has publicly expressed fear that the present power is too broad and has said he is greatly interested in the problem.

This is the climate in which the Senate Judiciary Committee has begun hearings on the Bricker resolution. Perhaps it should be added that 63 senators favor a change, according to its sponsor, and that both Secretary Dulles and Attorney General Brownell have declared a desire to "work out something."

It seems as if the circumstances may be right for action—perhaps the quick action demanded by Senator Langer, chairman of the subcommittee hearing the testimony.

The danger, as seen by backers of the resolution, is that some future administration might ratify an instrument that would weaken the freedom Americans prize above all else.

Air Contamination

Pure air is found only on mountain tops and in mid-ocean. But non-polluted air is the exception rather than the rule because it is difficult to live as we do without creating some degree of air contamination. Most city dwellers accept a reasonable amount but rebel when the air they breathe is besmirched with thousands of tons of dirt and grime.

Smoke denotes prosperity and in some cities, when the mills are running and the dirt flying, everybody is content and too busy to worry because it means that the employment rate is high. But air pollution is expensive; it damages our homes and makes our cleaning and painting bills go up. Many contaminants also affect the health of man, animals, and plants. In the past the mess was blamed on coal but now numerous industries give off not only smoke but gases, fumes, tars, and other obnoxious chemicals.

Housewives complain bitterly and a few years ago I heard a young housewife say she was tired of cleaning up someone else's dirt. This is a common belief but the woman did not consider that the furnace in her own home was a smoke producer and every time she burned wastepaper and refuse thousands of solid particles of carbon and ash went into the air. Furthermore, the family car gave off gasoline fumes and carbon monoxide. It is true that one person plays only a small part in polluting the air but when thousands of home and automobile owners are doing the same the amount is sizable. In some areas private contamination accounts for much more than industrial. When the steel mills in Pittsburgh were closed several years ago, the concentration of dust deposited per hour was almost identical with what it was when the plants were in full operation.

The pollution problem of each city varies with the type of industry, the social and economic conditions, and the surrounding environment and climate. Some areas are predominantly auto consumers; others, like Los Angeles, use considerable natural gas and oil. The weather and climate often play a more important role than all other factors combined. The removal of pollution depends upon air movement and precipitation and in the winter time, when cold, heavy air sinks and warm air rises there are few air currents in an upward direction. When this is combined with high humidity, dirt and dust hover over a city like a thick blanket. In the summer time the sun warms the surface of the earth and the hot, dust laden air rises and disappears. The horizontal component comes from wind and is controlled by factors from a more distant source. The Donora and Meuse valley disasters often are cited to accentuate the evils of air pollution. Actually, both these places were made to order for trouble along this line and when weather conditions are just right a heavy fog, laden with poisonous chemicals and gases, descends into the valley where it may remain for days. This is the type of air the inhabitants are forced to breathe and their fate depends upon the concentration of the chemicals contained therein.

Industry is cognizant of these hazards and is interested in control measures. Many of these ventures have proved to be money savers; in eliminating impurities valuable chemicals are salvaged.

TOMORROW: Expanding the volume of plasma.

My doctor suggests a visit to a neurologist, and I expect to do this soon. Meanwhile, can you offer any suggestions on the cause of this peculiar sensation?

REPLY

I have nothing further to add to your physician's suggestions because this symptom usually is of neurological origin.

EYE GIVING

D. W. writes: I have a friend who wants to give one of her eyes to her sister, who is blind. Could this be done without danger to the good eye?

REPLY

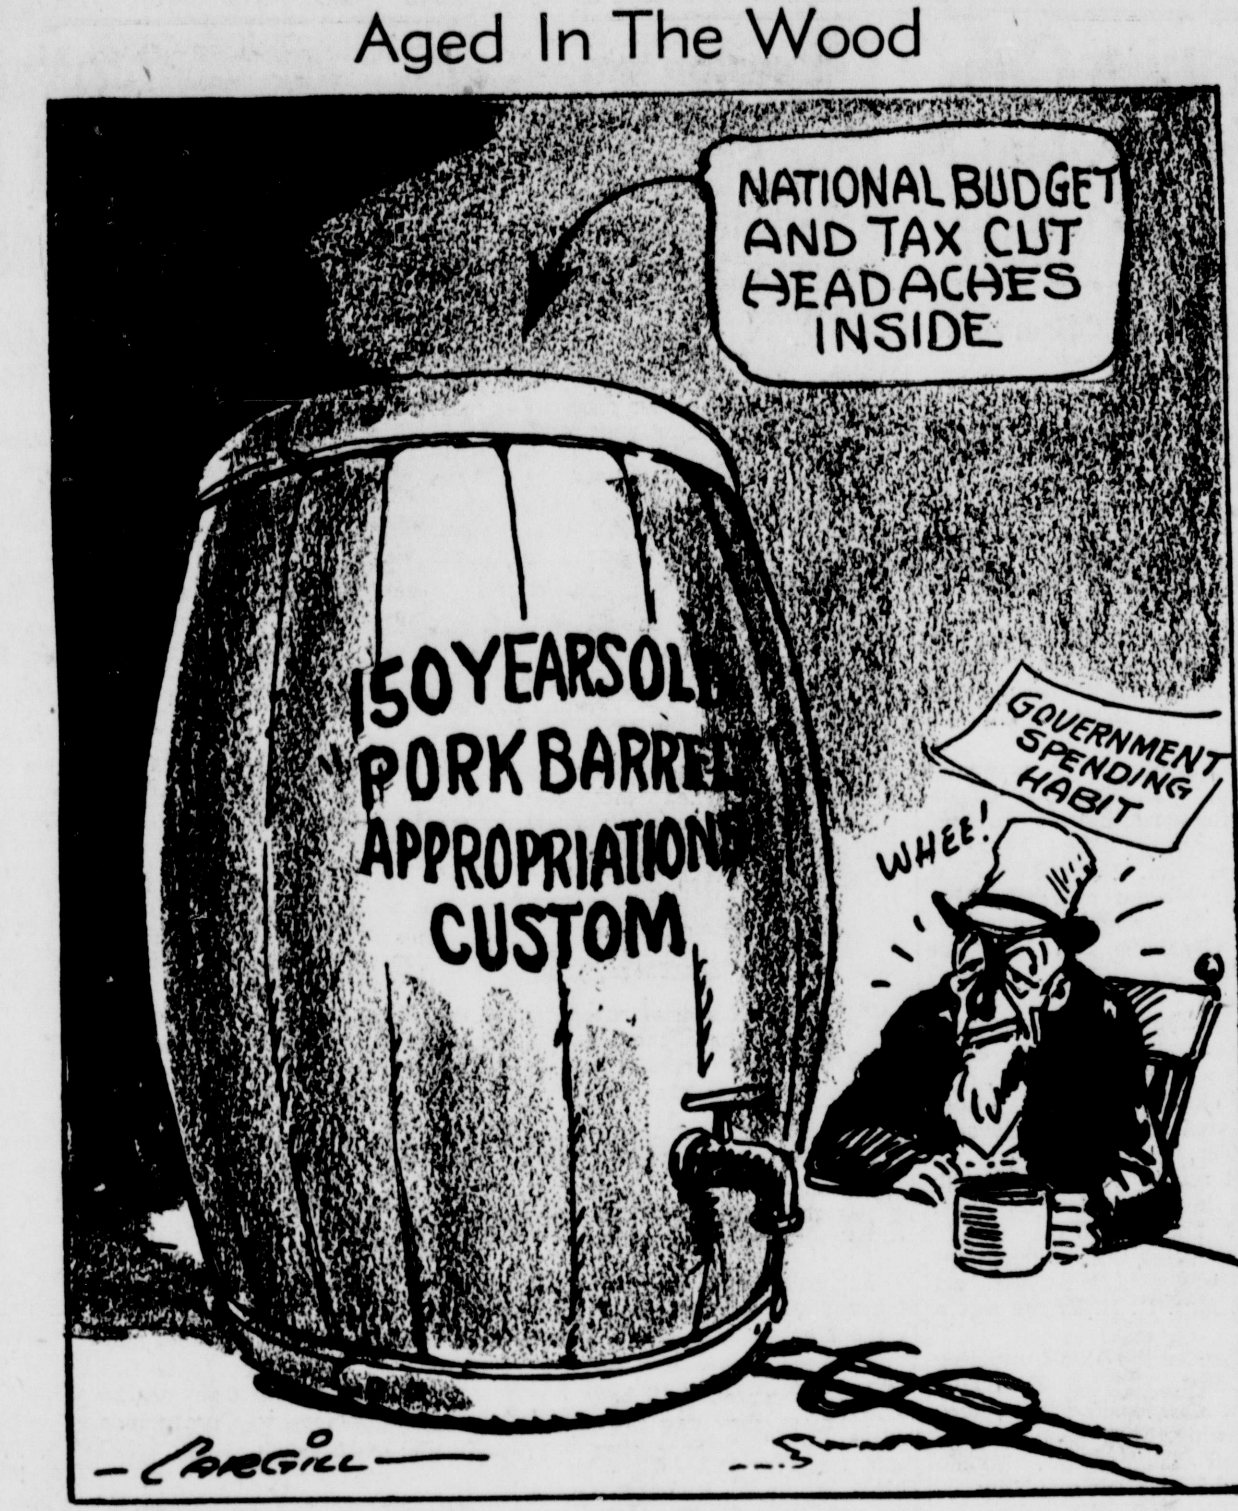

Yes; removing one eye should not affect the other. In the condition known as sympathetic ophthalmia, injury to one eye may lead to blindness in the other also.

SLIPPED FROM SLED

H. M. writes: A few years ago I slid from a sled, hitting the end of my spine. Since then I cannot lie on any hard surface or even assume a squatting position without a momentary feeling of numbness in my lower back. Is there any possibility that I have chipped the end of my spine?

This possibility exists so why not see your physician, who probably will suggest an X-ray.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Dr. Wilson Compton Gets Simultaneously Praised And Fired; John Foster Dulles Gets Jittery; McCarthy Gets State Department Coded Message

WASHINGTON — Dr. Wilson Compton, ex-head of the Voice of America and the State Department's information program, has been a lifelong Republican. One of three famous brothers, all college presidents, he has worked with the Democrats but frankly felt the U. S. A. would be in better hands under Republicans.

His eldest brother, Karl Compton, is famed president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His younger brother is president of Washington University at St. Louis, while Wilson himself was president of Washington State College at Pullman, Wash.

Two years ago, however, he consented to take over the State Department's propaganda program and the Voice of America. Acheson picked Compton because he had executive experience, also was a Republican. Actually, Acheson probably appointed more Republicans than Democrats. It helped the bipartisan foreign policy.

Lunching at the Mayflower Hotel the other day, Dr. Compton got an emergency phone call from the State Department. The new secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, wanted to see him at once.

Compton just happened to be lunching with Professor Mark May of Yale, chairman of the U. S. Advisory Committee on Information, a body established by Congress to advise the State Department regarding the Voice of America. Other members of the committee are Ben Hibbs, editor of the Saturday Evening Post; Phil Reed, head of General Electric, Erwin Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, and Judge Justin Miller, chairman, National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters.

Ironically, the committee had just issued a report which praised Dr. Compton for doing a remarkably good job with the Voice of America.

Making his apologies to Prof. May, Compton hurried back to the secretary of State, was told his resignation was being accepted forthwith. He had tendered his resignation Jan. 1, but in consideration of the new administration had stayed on until it could find a new man.

"I guess I made a mistake," Compton mused to a friend. "Here I've been looking forward to a Republican administration. Maybe I should have been a Democrat after all."

Jittery John Foster

Most jittery man in the State Department today is its new chief

John Foster Dulles. He has been so upset by the McCarthy probe that he makes snap decisions, ignores the steady advice of Undersecretary General "Beetle" Smith, an old hand at government.

Last week, Alfred Morton, head of the Voice of America in New York, sent a "proposed" directive to Washington on the question of quoting from Stalin, Karl Marx, and other Communist leaders.

The directive was sent over the regular teletype linking the State Department's office in New York with the main office in Washington, and, like all such messages, it was automatically coded. Addressed to W. B. Connors, assistant administrator, office of policy and plans, the proposed directive actually reached Senator McCarthy even before it reached Connors — just how, McCarthy is not telling.

In fact, a McCarthy staff member called Connors to tell him about the proposed directive even before he'd read it. Since the code is the same as that used for top secret transmissions of the Army, Navy, State Department, and Central Intelligence, the leak was serious.

The leak of a top-secret message was not what seemed to concern Secretary Dulles, however. Instead he hit the ceiling over the fact that Voice Chief Morton in New York appeared to differ with Washington over quoting Stalin, Marx, et al. Morton is an ex-vice president of the National Broadcasting Company, has been in the radio business for years, has a long record for opposing communism.

Snap Decision

However, nervous Mr. Dulles immediately suspended him. Difference of opinion regarding a directive, even when that difference was expressed in a secret, coded message, was not to be tolerated. Mr. Morton was summoned to Washington.

Arriving there, it developed that his message was only a "proposed directive," sent to the State Department for its advice and approval. Second, Mr. Morton pointed out that the best way to refute the words of Stalin or Marx was usually to quote them. In fact, it was difficult to refute them without quoting them.

In the end, Morton was reinstated but the directive against quotations kept. No explanation has been given or sought as to how Senator McCarthy obtained a copy of a coded teletype message even before it was read by the recipient official in Washington.

NOTE—Personnel of the State Department's information administration has been more thoroughly checked and investigated than any other branch of the department. This is required under Public Law 402 setting up the information program.

Pressures On Ike

WASHINGTON

President Eisenhower, fresh from the ivory tower of military life, was undoubtedly wholly unprepared for the tremendous business-political pressures which rage at the White House. Already, he should have learned better. For when obscure government decisions by obscure men can transform the profit pictures of whole industries, these pressures are inevitable.

Take what is known as "the Balboa case." This case involves a decision by the Civil Aeronautics Board on which domestic air line will hook up with which air line serving South America, in order to provide through services from domestic points.

Two air line giants—Eastern Air Lines and Pan American—want to join together for this purpose. If this happened, the smaller competitors of these two great lines would be placed, to put it mildly, in a most difficult competitive position. Two of these competitors are National Air Lines and Braniff Air Lines, which also serve South America.

Last year, the CAB unanimously ruled that Eastern was to join Braniff for the South American service, while National was to hook up with Pan American. This of course delighted National and Braniff, particularly the latter, which would have been threatened with destruction if its giant competitor in the South American service, Pan American, had been married to Eastern for the through run. After this ruling a curious game of battledore and shuttlecock started between the White House and the CAB.

Decision Pigeon-Holed

White House cronies John Steelman and Mat Connelly intervened with President Truman. The President sent the decision back to the board, with a request for reconsideration. Again, the board voted unanimously to sustain its own decision, and sent the decision back to the White House for Truman's signature. The decision was then pigeon-holed in the White House, where it stayed from mid-summer of last year until just before the inauguration this year.

Then Truman sent it back unsigned a second time — and the board voted the same way a third time. So now the decision rests with President Eisenhower. A tremendous outburst of particularly energetic lobbying around the White House and the CAB has resulted.

What is at stake is not only the pattern of power in a great industry. A basic principle is also at stake. The government can support the big companies which are generally more efficient and better financed — and which also have powerful political connections. Or the government can support the principle of maintaining some sort of competitive balance in the government-subsidized air line industry.

For another example of the same sort of pressures, consider the case of the Federal Power Commission. Sen. Charles Tobey, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, recently wrote in a memorandum for President Eisenhower: "There has been a conscious and persistent purpose of the producer interests in the oil and gas states to get control of the membership of the commission in order to put up the price of gas for their net benefit." The "producer interests" succeeded in doing just this toward the end of President Truman's term of office.

Struggle About Appointees

The result was an administrative ruling by the commission, which, in effect, reversed Truman's veto of the Kerr bill, freeing natural gas producers from rate regulation by the commission. This ruling increased the value of the holdings of a single company, Phillips Petroleum, by a sum estimated at close to three-quarters of a billion dollars. Conversely, the potential cost to consumers would come to untold sums.

Consumer communities, including Detroit, Kansas City and the state of Wisconsin, immediately appealed the ruling to the courts. As insurance against an adverse decision, the producer interests are now determined to insure their control of the commission membership. Therefore a fierce, underground struggle is now being waged around the identity of two new commission members whom the President must soon appoint.

A leading industry candidate is one Jeff Robertson, of Kansas. Robertson is backed by Sen. Frank Carlson, who is in turn a friend of the President's. Robertson is considered absolutely "safe" by the industry. Senators from consumer states, however, including many Republicans, are fighting the Robertson appointment. They are backing consumer-minded men like John Doerfer, of Wisconsin, who spark-plugged the court fight, and the present chairman, Thomas Buchanan.

The money stakes in such obscure struggles in little-known government agencies are immense. But what is really at issue in such struggles is the role of the government as adjudicator between the public and the private interests. The way the new Administration handles this role can have profound political consequences. As Tobey also wrote to the President: "I know the pressures we Republicans are under, from the oil and gas interests. . . But I do think we should be discriminating and intelligent as to the political end results in the rate and extent of our yieldings to our allies."

What They Want

One of the last acts of Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer was to send a commission of businessmen to visit Great Britain, France, Western Germany, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Belgium, Switzerland, The Netherlands, and Spain. Their report was lost in the Christmas holidays and the inauguration.

Nevertheless, it is an important document which provides an interesting index to the economic demands which are being made upon our country at this time. The commission found:

"In every country we visited, conditions were better rather than worse than we had expected. . . . Everywhere they went, they found concern over our tariff policies:

" . . . The feeling is general that the United States can help in promoting healthy international trade by a lowering of tariff barriers, and a simplification of customs procedures. The latter is regarded as being as important as the lowering of tariff barriers."

The Europeans wish to market their goods in this country, no matter what that does to the American economy or the American standard of living. In one place, the report says:

" . . . It was stated with considerable force that, before European businessmen incur the expense of promoting enterprises which will export commodities to the United States, they would need some assurance that these investments will not be made valueless by subsequent prohibitive import duties or by subsidies placed by our country upon competing articles . . ."

Of course, no one can guarantee that. Should this country suffer a labor slump because of European dumping, subsidized by American aid, Congress would act with speed and the administration would support the congressional position. The free-trade position taken by Henry Ford II is only tenable if we import commodities which in no manner reduce employment in the United States at the present social level. If, however, we open our doors to dumped commodities, unloaded upon us to gain dollars under the auspices of governments, the peril may be very great to workers.

No foreign country can effectively compete in the American automobile market, but that is not true concerning dried figs or raisins or cheese, to take three commodities which have important regional significance. With the butter market suffering as it has, dairy farmers, in several areas, have turned to cheese as a marketable commodity with success. But they can be undermined by cheaper European prices, particularly as no equalizer exists between European and American wages.

The slogan, "Trade Not Aid," which sounds so wonderful after the billions that this country has poured out as aid, needs to be studied commodity by commodity. Where no harm can be done to the American economy, European countries should be permitted to trade in our markets if they can. If harm is done to the whole economy or regionally, then this country must guard against its own destruction. Nothing should be permitted which could tend to pull down the American economy.

The report states:

" . . . 'Trade, not aid,' however, involves responsibilities for the so-called 'deficit countries.' These include internal financial stabilization measures and budget and credit policies which deal adequately with inflationary pressures. Governments must live within their means, levy adequate taxes, postpone less essential expenditures and remove restrictions on multi-lateral trade and payments. Business must improve production and management techniques, delivery schedules, packaging for overseas demands, and employ other methods of improved efficiency."

Apparently, everywhere in the countries visited, a desire was expressed for increased investment of private American capital. But on what guarantees? If Americans pour their money into a country, can they get anything out? Will

A report which suggests that $5,000,000,000 can be cut from the military budget without endangering the nation's security is clearly something which must not be given the "file and forget" treatment. So it is encouraging to have Charles E. Wilson, secretary of Defense, declare that the recommendations of the Citizens Advisory Commission on Utilization of Manpower in the Armed Services call for "authoritative action and decision."

This is no ordinary report which has been submitted by the commission. It is the result of painstaking investigation by a group of distinguished citizens, including not only business men but retired military officers. It is not concerned with over-all policy and it does not undertake to say how large a fighting force the country needs to meet the present emergency. It does, however, show how manpower is now being shamefully wasted and misused.

The statement by the commission that the armed services could operate effectively with 500,000 fewer men will of course stir the services to bitter protest. It is not their nature to surrender on a point like this or to yield any of their authority or substance.

If, therefore, anything is to come from this enterprise it must be the consequence of direct orders from the top and continued insistence that the orders be strictly obeyed. Considering the state of the nation's finances, this is a job that is well worth the doing, regardless of whose toes are stepped on.

Canada's Happy State

Americans with an eye on the absorbing drama in Washington which revolves around the question of cutting or not cutting taxes must have felt as though someone had hit them when they weren't looking. Behind their backs the Canadian government blithely announced an 11 per cent cut in personal income taxes and cuts of varying size in corporation and sales taxes, including the tax on cigarettes.

As Canadian Finance Minister Abbott explained, Canada is closing its books on another year of "prosperity without inflation." Americans may take a sharp rather than envious look at Canadian operations when they are told that the government to the north has been reducing its national debt by nearly $2,500,000,000 annually. A comparable feat in Washington would take a $30,000,000,000 chip off the national debt each year.

How do the Canadians do it? Well, they let their economy go free wheeling along with a minimum of controls and strings. Their defense outlay, proportionally, is less than half that of this country. They have had the good fortune to uncover tremendous natural resources, both in petroleum and uranium bearing ores, at a time when half the world is desperately looking for new sources. Hence there has been a tremendous influx of foreign capital, most of it from the United States. They have had record harvests, exports and consumer expenditures.

But who is to envy a man who parlays his possessions into a big state and skims off the cream that is rightfully his?

Tornado Season

Destructive tornadoes have struck in Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama, causing much damage and loss of life, and they served as a grim reminder that man is never so helpless as when confronted by a tornado. Frequently an entire town is reduced to rubble with not more than a few minutes' warning.

Cyclone cellars were standard equipment in the early days in tornado country, but these are not of much benefit unless an individual happens to be near it waiting for something to happen when the twister strikes. So great is the destructive force of these meteorological phenomena that it is difficult to anticipate the possibility of one striking and prepare for the eventuality with any degree of success. Nothing that man can erect is immune to damage when it is in the path of a tornado, it seems.

The U. S. Weather Bureau has made elaborate preparations to issue warnings when tornadoes are believed to be imminent, but it is impossible to pinpoint the danger far enough in advance to warn prospective victims. The weather bureau at New Orleans issued warnings that tornadoes could be expected, which proved to be accurate, but it was impossible to predict where they would strike or exactly when.

Individuals living in tornado country, hearing over the radio that things looked ominous, might take curatory precautions, but man never believes that catastrophe will single him out for special attention until he is confronted by the stark reality.

Armor For Civilians

Maybe some day judges will intone: "Fifty dollars fine for a concealed deadly weapon and $50 for a concealed live-saving vest. Next case!"

The story is that the Navy and the Department of Justice are worrying about the possible sale of the new plastic chest armor to civilians. This is the device the Marines are using to reduce by two-thirds the casualties in Korean fighting. The Philadelphia firm making it has been considering putting it on the market for "hunters, bank guards and policemen."

But a bullet-proof vest might have an appeal to bank robbers as well as bank guards. Maybe there is also some concern lest the product exported in large quantities might find its devious way into Communist armies.

But should a certain plastic be ruled out of general use merely because one of its properties is that it is bullet-proof? If Russia has the atom bomb, is the chest protector impossible of manufacture by the Reds? And if a bank robber really tries hard enough, won't he manage to get hold of a vest as well as a gun?

Restricting Treaties

Senator Bricker of Ohio has proposed a new constitutional amendment that would put stricter curbs on the President and the Senate in negotiating agreements with other countries. The American Bar Association agrees that something along this line should be done. Secretary of State Dulles has publicly expressed fear that the present power is too broad and has said he is greatly interested in the problem.

This is the climate in which the Senate Judiciary Committee has begun hearings on the Bricker resolution. Perhaps it should be added that 63 senators favor a change, according to its sponsor, and that both Secretary Dulles and Attorney General Brownell have declared a desire to "work out something."

It seems as if the circumstances may be right for action—perhaps the quick action demanded by Senator Langer, chairman of the subcommittee hearing the testimony.

The danger, as seen by backers of the resolution, is that some future administration might ratify an instrument that would weaken the freedom Americans prize above all else.

Air Contamination

Pure air is found only on mountain tops and in mid-ocean. But non-polluted air is the exception rather than the rule because it is difficult to live as we do without creating some degree of air contamination. Most city dwellers accept a reasonable amount but rebel when the air they breathe is besmirched with thousands of tons of dirt and grime.

Smoke denotes prosperity and in some cities, when the mills are running and the dirt flying, everybody is content and too busy to worry because it means that the employment rate is high. But air pollution is expensive; it damages our homes and makes our cleaning and painting bills go up. Many contaminants also affect the health of man, animals, and plants. In the past the mess was blamed on coal but now numerous industries give off not only smoke but gases, fumes, tars, and other obnoxious chemicals.

Housewives complain bitterly and a few years ago I heard a young housewife say she was tired of cleaning up someone else's dirt. This is a common belief but the woman did not consider that the furnace in her own home was a smoke producer and every time she burned wastepaper and refuse thousands of solid particles of carbon and ash went into the air. Furthermore, the family car gave off gasoline fumes and carbon monoxide. It is true that one person plays only a small part in polluting the air but when thousands of home and automobile owners are doing the same the amount is sizable. In some areas private contamination accounts for much more than industrial. When the steel mills in Pittsburgh were closed several years ago, the concentration of dust deposited per hour was almost identical with what it was when the plants were in full operation.

The pollution problem of each city varies with the type of industry, the social and economic conditions, and the surrounding environment and climate. Some areas are predominantly coal consumers; others, like Los Angeles, use considerable natural gas and oil. The weather and climate often play a more important role than all other factors combined. The removal of pollution depends upon air movement and precipitation and in the winter time, when cold, heavy air sinks and warm air rises there are few air currents in an upward direction. When this is combined with high humidity, dirt and dust hover over a city like a thick blanket. In the summer time the sun warms the surface of the earth and the hot, dust laden air rises and disappears. The horizontal component comes from wind and is controlled by factors from a more distant source. The Donora and Meuse valley disasters often are cited to accentuate the evils of air pollution. Actually, both these places were made to order for trouble along this line and when weather conditions are just right a heavy fog, laden with poisonous chemicals and gases, descends into the valley where it may remain for days. This is the type of air the inhabitants are forced to breathe and their fate depends upon the concentration of the chemicals contained therein.

Industry is cognizant of these hazards and is interested in control measures. Many of these ventures have proved to be money savers; in eliminating impurities valuable chemicals are salvaged.

Congress Asked For $96 Million To Improve Canal Linking Chesapeake, Delaware Bays

Wintry scene on the Chesapeake and Delaware canal, which saves 280 watery miles.

By H. D. CRAWFORD
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Forty-one miles south of Philadelphia, where the Delaware river starts widening to form the Delaware bay, your map will show you it is only a few miles across the neck of the Delmarva peninsula to the northern tip of Chesapeake bay. Since 1829 a canal has linked the two famous bays.

Among early bills introduced to the 83rd Congress is one sponsored by Maryland's Rep. George H. Fallon proposing a $96 million modernization of the Chesapeake and Delaware canal. It provides for deepening the historic waterway to 35 feet, widening it to 450 feet at the bottom, easing its dangerous bends to a curvature radius of 7,000 feet, and replacing all highway and railroad lift bridges with high-level, fixed bridges with vertical clearances of 135 feet.

Although the canal is already 250 feet wide and has a 27-foot channel, numerous collisions and other accidents have occurred as ships try to pass in its treacherous curves or along its bridge piers. Most dramatic of these was the sinking last summer of the oil tanker F. H. Hayes. This closed the canal for 104 precious days and spurred the board of engineers for rivers and harbors to complete the recommendations it had been requested back in 1939 to make.

The present sea-level ship canal was completed in the late 1930s, just in time to prove of tremendous value during World War II. It was during those dark days when German submarines infested the Atlantic that shipping officials really learned to appreciate the strategic value of the great inland waterway that enabled ocean-going ships to carry their cargoes between Norfolk, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and other eastern ports with minimum use of the Atlantic ocean.

During those days of ship and time shortages, the C. and D. canal demonstrated how important are the 280 miles it cuts off the water route between Philadelphia and Baltimore, the 150 miles it saves between Baltimore and New York, and the 115 miles it reduces the journey between Baltimore and many European ports. This not only saved precious ship space and time, but reduced the amount of conveying required.

Rep. George H. Fallon

During the last normal prewar year of 1940, the C. and D. canal carried 3,794,999 tons of cargo, but in 1942 this tonnage jumped to 10,827,462. Immediately after the war, tonnage dropped back to prewar levels. When American industry got under way with peacetime production the C. and D. canal had climbed up to 7,289,188 by 1950—about 98 per cent in five years. Commodities most frequently hauled are chemicals, petroleum products, steel and iron products, coal, and numerous manufactured products. Engineers estimate that more than 1,000 large vessels each year use the longer and more costly ocean route between Baltimore and other ports instead of the C. and D. canal because of the canal's congestion and hazards. Nevertheless, in 1950 vessels with drafts of 26 feet and under made 14,506 trips through the canal.

Since the present canal was opened to deep-draft traffic in 1938, more than 200 vessel accidents have occurred. About half of these have been collisions with bridge structures. Necessary regulations result in slow speeds and costly loss of time.

History records that "as early as 1680 one Augustus Herman, lord of Bohemia Manor, contemplated the construction of a canal to connect the Delaware and Chesapeake bays." Surveys were not made, however, until the 1760s, and then the Revolutionary war thwarted any construction.

Maryland authorized the incorporation of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal company in 1799. Delaware and Pennsylvania supported the proposed waterway. The estimated cost of $2,250,000 was raised by appropriations from the three states, the federal government and by popular subscription. In 1829 the first small lock canal was opened. It was 10 feet deep and 36 feet wide at the bottom. Mules towed the shallow-draft boats.

In 1919 the United States government acquired the C. and D. canal and by 1927 had made it a sea-level waterway 12 feet deep and 90 to 150 wide. In 1935 a wider and deeper canal was authorized and the present waterway constructed.

I was told on Capitol Hill that Congress has approved more than $1 billion of navigation projects for which appropriations have not yet been made. Promoters of the enlarged C. and D. canal are optimistic, however, that their project will attain high priority, since it is recommended by the board of engineers for rivers and harbors and the Army chief of engineers. Facts and figures they present indicate that a wider, deeper, and safer Chesapeake and Delaware canal is urgently needed to meet demands of peacetime commerce, and that its service to the nation would be invaluable in case of another war.

Railroader Retires

F. K. Reeder, 69, of Tunnelton, W. Va., has retired after 50 years service with the B & O Railroad Company.

He began his railroad career at the age of 16 in the Maintenance of Way Department. After six years in the Signal Department, he left the road for a number of years to return in 1909 with the Telegraph Department. For the last 40 years or more he has been a telegraph operator on the Cumberland Division, mostly at Tunnelton.

Reeder is married to the former Miss Sylvia Lee Coole. They have a foster son who resides in Baltimore. After a short rest, Mr. Reeder and his wife will take several trips. He is active in Methodist Church work at Tunnelton.

Bids Open March 17 On Resurfacing Work

The State Roads Commission will open bids March 17 on the resurfacing of 3.58 miles of the Blooming-ton-Swanton Road in Garrett County, according to G. Bates Chaires, district SRC engineer.

Chaires said the section to be done is about midway between the two communities, which are 10 miles apart. The roadway will be 22 feet wide and the surfacing will be of the penetration macadam type. Some sections of the present roadway to be resurfaced are only 10 feet wide.

The roadway is a short cut for persons going to and from Cumberland and Deep Creek Lake, and is also a shorter route for many persons coming from nearby West Virginia points to Cumberland. The roadway had been part of Garrett County's highway system and was taken over by the SRC after a resolution was passed in the Maryland General Assembly. Meanwhile, a number of projects

How many people now own Life Insurance?

Over 88 million in the United States—
23 million more than in 1940!

Today, more Americans than ever before are using life insurance to provide for the financial security of their families and themselves.

Three out of every four families now own life insurance.

Almost as many women as men are policyowners!

Life insurance is owned by people in every walk of life. 9 out of 10 families headed by business executives own it. 8 out of 10 clerical workers. 8 out of 10 professional people. 7 out of 10 farmers. 8 out of 10 skilled workers. Even 6 out of 10 retired persons!

In thousands of cases, life insurance is the main resource of the family. It has kept families together, providing their food, clothing and shelter.

To many families, it has assured an education for their children. To others, a home free and clear of a mortgage, or a retirement income in old age.

The widespread ownership of life insurance clearly shows the desire of 88 million Americans to help provide on their own for the security of their families and themselves.

Business Shows Decrease Here During January

Business in Cumberland showed a seasonal decline during January according to a business report released yesterday by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Anthony Saeli, manager of the Chamber, said the decrease was a normal decline following the huge volume of business during December and the Christmas holidays.

He added business will show a sharp increase in coming months as shoppers prepare for the Easter holidays.

Payrolls at the 17 major industries show a decline of 3.9 per cent during January compared to December. Employment, however, showed no change in the same period.

Employment Steadies
Payrolls in January amounted to $3,451,135 compared to $3,557,707 in December. Employment totaled 11,126 in January compared to 11,124 in December or an increase of only two.

Postal receipts were reported as a 53.3 per cent decrease last month compared to December. Receipts amounted to $28,987 in January compared to $62,116 in December.

Postal savings deposits, on the other hand, increased 6 per cent last month. Savings deposits in January amounted to $319,146 last month compared to $317,041 in December.

Savings bonds and bank debits both showed declines last month, 19.6 per cent and 3.3 per cent respectively. Savings bonds last month amounted to $5,737 compared to December's $7,143, while bank debits off a million dollars were $28,730,000 last month compared to $29,741,000 in December.

Building permits this month increased 281.4 per cent over January. This month, building permits amounted to $64,650 compared to $16,950 in January.

Fewer Placements
The Maryland Employment service showed a slight increase in placements between the period January 16 to February 16. The agency reported 123 placements on February 16 compared to 108 on January 16, or an increase of 15 persons placed in jobs.

At the same time the local employment office reported an increase of 350 registered for unemployment. There were 2,299 registered on February 16 compared to 1,949 on January 16.

The outlook for business here is favorable next month. The March "Sales Management" index for Cumberland indicates a volume of $4,780,000 or 102.8 per cent of the volume of March a year ago.

The city National Index for Cumberland is 98.8, indicating that the city is 1.2 below the national figure of 100.

Cumberland's "food basket" costs showed a decrease this month compared to February of last year. The average cost of the 15 items this month was $8.82 compared to $9.75 in February, 1952.

Tri-State Art Exhibit Will Begin Tonight

The annual Tri-State Art Exhibit will open officially at 7 o'clock tonight at the Cumberland Free Public Library.

Paintings and other works of art may be viewed between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. Monday through Saturday and from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday. Students from Frostburg State Teachers College will serve as hosts and hostesses this week. The exhibit ends Tuesday, March 31.

McKeldin And Beall Oppose Move To Give D. Of C. Back To Maryland

proposal now before Congress to give the District of Columbia back to Maryland lacks the support of most of the state's top officials and lawmakers.

Gov. McKeldin said yesterday he was opposed to the move, and Sen. Beall (R-Md.) agreed with him.

"The city of Washington belongs to all of the people of the United States," the Republican governor said.

"It should be part of no state. As the capital of the nation, it should not receive its authority for government from any one state capital."

Second Semester Of Local Underwriting Class Begins

The second semester of the life underwriting training course sponsored by the Cumberland Life Underwriters Association has begun with studies in social security and programming life insurance contracts.

All 17 students made up of employees of Peoples Life Insurance Company, were given mid-year examinations with each student passing with a high average.

The three-hour class is held each Friday afternoon at Central YMCA. Instructor for the course is Robert O. Collins, manager of Peoples Life Insurance Company. A special instructor during the study is James S. Getty, manager of the Cumberland Social Security field office.

The class has been divided into teams and a contest is underway on the production of new life insurance contracts.

Taking the course are Fritz Ours, John Donnelly, Paul Wendel, Roy McCabe, William McKenzie, Elwood Rosenance, Ivan DeWitt, Harold Crabtree, Glenn Kight, Loman Bennett and H. L. Snyder, all of Peoples Life.

Those from Monumental Life taking the course are George Aldon, Brooks Starcher, Ted Stilwell, Jack Atkinson and J. K. Snyder.

USAF Plane Crashes After 11 Men Bail Out

INDIANAPOLIS, March 2 (AP)—Eleven men bailed out of a crippled two-engine Air Force cargo plane in a heavy snowstorm west of here tonight and the plane crashed in a farm lot.

The men were scattered over an eight-mile area by strong winds but all were located within an hour and a half of the crash and there were no serious injuries.

The plane, reported out of Lowry Air Base, Colo., and en route to Attlebury Air Base, Ind., radioed the Indianapolis municipal airport—eight miles away—that one of its engines had failed. The pilot said he had ordered his co-pilot and nine passengers to jump.

Second Ranking Jet Ace Won't Push Luck

A SABRE JET AIRFIELD, Korea, Monday, March 2 (AP)—America's second ranking jet ace says he is going to keep hunting for Communist MIGs until he goes home, but is not going to push his luck to become top ace.

Col. Royal N. (The King) Baker, 34-year-old father of four children, ends his Korean tour March 27.

The McKinney, Tex., flier has shot down 10 Communist MIGs and one propeller-driven LA9 and in addition has damaged a MIG. His record is second only to Maj. George Davis, Jr., who was shot down over North Korea a year ago and is listed as missing in action.

Two Girls Injured In Auto Accident

BALTIMORE, March 1 (AP)—A granddaughter of wealthy industrialist R. J. Funkhouser and her girl companion were reported in serious condition here today from injuries suffered yesterday in an Eastern Shore automobile smash-up.

The girls, Carol Funkhouser, 16, and Wanda Wood, 15, were hurt when a foreign-made open sport car overturned on U. S. 213 near Centerville after veering off the highway.

Thrown from the car, they were first taken to a Chestertown hospital. Doctors there said their condition was critical.

McKeldin And Beall Oppose Move To Give D. Of C. Back To Maryland

The district was created out of Maryland in 1790. McKeldin did agree, however, that residents of Washington should be allowed to vote, a privilege they now lack.

Sen. Butler (R-Md.) declined to take a stand in the matter, but his colleague, Sen. Beall, agreed with McKeldin that Maryland should not take the capital back.

The Washington Star yesterday printed the results of a survey among state legislators here, reporting that of the 73 it polled on the question 53 were against it, 15 took a neutral position and 5 said they were in favor of taking the district back.

Many agreed this could hurt D'Alesandro's chances if he tries for the gubernatorial nomination in '54—which he reportedly is looking toward—because it threw Della closer to Tawes, who is also expected to be on the state ticket.

Della's next move is toward the attorney general's post, observers say, and on a ticket headed by Tawes or Dr. H. C. Byrd, University of Maryland president, or both, with Byrd seeking the governorship and Tawes running for reelection as comptroller.

Membership Drive Underway By YMCA

The annual membership drive of Central YMCA is now in progress. Chairman this year is Woodward D. Pealer, manager of the local Kelly-Springfield Tire Company store.

The committee hopes to increase the present membership by enrolling 850 new members. In announcing the program, James W. Bishop, president, emphasized that Cumberland has a million dollar YMCA building, debt free and owned by the citizens of Cumberland.

Six major groups under Pealer's leadership will compete during the program.

Reuter Doubts Reds Can End Refugee Flow

BERLIN, March 1 (AP)—Mayor Ernst Reuter declared today he doubts if the Russians ever can seal off West Berlin properly to stem the flow of refugees from the Communist zone.

Moreover, the mayor asserted, he "has a feeling" that the westward trek of valuable manpower from the Communist zone is "worrying the Russians."

He made his comments to 33 American editors and publishers who arrived here last night on the first leg of a European tour.

Association To Have Program

A discussion of "Building Bridges in Faith—Through the United Nations," will feature the program of the Woman's Association of the First Presbyterian Church, Monday. The meeting is being held at 7:30 in the fellowship hall.

Miss Jane Grindle, of the faculty of Allegheny High School, will give the structure and agencies of the UN; and Miss Gertrude Williams, instructor at Beall High School, will speak on "The Success of the UN."

Devotionals are to be conducted by Mrs. Edgar Duke. The Cramer-MacDonald Circle will be hostess for the social hour.

Legionnaires To Attend Dinner Here Tonight

Rival teams in the current membership campaign of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, will attend a ham and bean dinner at 6:30 o'clock this evening at the Legion Home.

Some 45 men are on the two teams, captained by Howard M. Spiker and Paul C. Weisenmiller, Sr., are invited to the dinner, according to J. F. Challinor, post vice-commander and membership chairman. The winning team will eat ham and the losers beans.

Guests will be Frank Powers of Frostburg, Legion national executive committeeman, and Raymond Burke of Washington, state membership chairman.

Democratic Lineup

party needed new leadership in the state. They kept quiet about their strategy until it came time to organize the Senate. Nine supported Della. The 11 Republicans, backing Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) sat on the sidelines and gleefully watched the scrap.

During the week-long struggle, two Della-ites shifted to the insurgent bloc backing Sen. Sybert (D-Howard) for presiding officer. That made it 11-7 for the rebels. But Della was re-elected when the Republicans threw their 11 votes to Della to break the stalemate.

The insurgents immediately accused Della's "party-line" Democrats of making a deal with the Republicans. Della emphatically denied this.

Della became miffed at Baltimore's Mayor D'Alesandro, Democratic national committeeman, during the fight because he stayed clear of the scrap and did not try to intercede.

Many agreed this could hurt D'Alesandro's chances if he tries for the gubernatorial nomination in '54—which he reportedly is looking toward—because it threw Della closer to Tawes, who is also expected to be on the state ticket.

Della's next move is toward the attorney general's post, observers say, and on a ticket headed by Tawes or Dr. H. C. Byrd, University of Maryland president, or both, with Byrd seeking the governorship and Tawes running for reelection as comptroller.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 1 (INS)—One of my favorite people in the whole world, lovable Jimmy Durante, checks in at Universal-International June to star in a musical. The title, "I Gotta Million of 'Em." I'm sure I don't have to remind you, is taken from one of Jimmy's best known songs.

In the original story by William Cox, Schnozzola plays a barber, and William Goetz says the comedy idea is a natural for the Schnoz. Albert J. Cohen is set to produce, and well—it's Mr. James Durante's first starring musical. I'll bet he could get Margaret Truman as his co-star—he's her favorite comedian.

Big talks are on to buy "The Deep Blue Sea," the Margaret Sullivan play, for Bette Davis' next movie.

Bert Friedlob, who produced "The Star" which won Bette an Oscar nomination and has been running in New York for weeks and weeks, is hot on the telephone to close a deal for the Terence Rattigan drama.

Speed is a factor in this deal because Bette gets leave from her own Broadway hit, "Two's Company" in June. She wants to make her next picture for Bert because "The Star" is the best movie she's had in many a day.

The terrific success and sensational reviews of Rosalind Russell in "Wonderful Town" was bound to bring "My Sister Eileen" out of its wrappings.

Columbia, which owns the book by Joe Fields, made the original motion picture version of "My Sister Eileen" some years ago with Roz in the same part she is now wowing them with in New York.

Naturally, the "Wonderful Town" title will not be used in Columbia's musical version. It will be "The Gay Girls," with Freddie Kohlmar slated to produce. Who will play the sisters hasn't yet been determined. There will be all new songs, too.

Although they've been married only two months, Peggy Lee and her good looking bridegroom, Brad Dexter, will soon be saying "hello" and "goodbye" to each other as she starts out the door to work and he's coming home from the studio.

The very day, March 4—that Peggy opens at the Coconut Grove, Brad goes to work as the second male lead to John Payne (and Evelyn Keyes) in "Cross Town" for Eddie Small.

This is Brad's best movie break since his marriage to Peggy and she's just as excited about the job as he is.

Business Shows Decrease Here During January

Business in Cumberland showed a seasonal decline during January according to a business report released yesterday by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Anthony Saeli, manager of the Chamber, said the decrease was a normal decline following the huge volume of business during December and the Christmas holidays.

He added business will show a sharp increase in coming months as shoppers prepare for the Easter holidays.

Payrolls at the 17 major industries show a decline of 3.9 per cent during January compared to December. Employment, however, showed no change in the same period.

Employment Statistics
Payrolls in January amounted to $3,451,135 compared to $3,557,707 in December. Employment totaled 11,126 in January compared to 11,124 in December or an increase of only two.

Postal receipts were reported as a 5.3 per cent decrease last month compared to December. Receipts amounted to $28,987 in January compared to $30,146 last month compared to $31,041 in December.

Savings bonds and bank debits both showed declines last month, 19.6 per cent and 3.3 per cent respectively. Savings bonds last month amounted to $5,737 compared to December's $7,143, while bank debits off a million dollars were $28,730,000 last month compared to $29,741,000 in December.

Building permits this month increased 28.1 per cent over January. This month, building permits amounted to $64,650 compared to $16,950 in January.

Placements
The Maryland Employment service showed a slight increase in placements between the period January 16 to February 16. The agency reported 123 placements on February 16 compared to 108 on January 16, or an increase of 15 persons placed in jobs.

At the same time the local employment office reported an increase of 350 registered for unemployment. There were 2,299 registered on February 16 compared to 1,949 on January 16.

The outlook for business here is favorable next month. The March "Sales Management" index for Cumberland indicates a volume of $4,780,000 or 102.8 per cent of the volume of March a year ago.

The city National Index for Cumberland is 98.8, indicating that the city is 1.2 below the national figure of 100.

Cumberland's "food basket" costs showed a decrease this month compared to February of last year. The average cost of the 15 items this month was $8.82 compared to $9.75 in February, 1952.

Tri-State Art Exhibit Will Begin Tonight
The annual Tri-State Art Exhibit will open officially at 7 o'clock tonight at the Cumberland Free Public Library.

Paintings and other works of art may be viewed between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. Monday through Saturday and from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday. Students from Frostburg State Teachers College will serve as hosts and hostesses this week. The exhibit ends Tuesday, March 31.

McKeldin And Beall Oppose Move To Give D. Of C. Back To Maryland

proposal now before Congress to give the District of Columbia back to Maryland lacks the support of most of the state's top officials and lawmakers.

Gov. McKeldin said yesterday he was opposed to the move, and Sen. Beall (R-Md) agreed with him.

"It should be part of no state. As the capital of the nation, it should not receive its authority for government from any one state capital."

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

IT IS seldom wise to let your left-hand opponent play for a contract of one in a suit with which he opened the bidding. His partner's pass tells you that your own partner probably had passed a pretty good hand in preference to overcalling. If your own cards are anywhere near to an original bid in total strength, you usually will profit by bidding or doubling, in preference to letting the auction close. The best way to do this—unless you have quite a long single suit or a two-suit—is generally by doubling, which offers your partner more options.

There you see the bidding that should have come on this rubber deal. What actually happened, though, is that West bid 1-Spade and everybody passed. He made the contract, losing one trick in trumps, three in diamonds and one each in hearts and clubs.

That result did not seem to be of any particular importance at the moment. But one deal later, North and South made a contract of 4-Diamonds right on the head. If they, instead of West, had gained a part-score on the deal shown, they could have closed out a two-game rubber with four-odd in the minor. As it was, following that deal, East and West made a game, so that North and South eventually won a much smaller rubber as the finale of the evening's activities.

If South had made a takeout double when the 1-Spade reached him, it would have given North every possible option—a business pass, a call of 1-No Trump or a bid of any other suit at the level of two. The double would have been much wiser here than a reopening bid of 2-Diamonds, which North might have had to take out to 3-Clubs if he had a slightly different hand. With his holding, a double by South would have been taken to 2-Clubs by North. If West then tried 2-Spades over that, he could have been set.

South pleaded afterward that his failure to act was due to his side being vulnerable. That should have been an extra reason for action, since North would have needed more strength for an overcall when vulnerable, hence might have a fair hand.

Path Of Redemption

A month or so ago, I wrote here a number of churchy remarks about Ralph Edwards' show "This Is Your Life," a program which struck me as being a little too thoroughly tear-jerker and more than a little phoney. Recently, though, Mr. Edwards came up with a new wrinkle or at least a different one which, though not the complete answer, is a step in the right direction.

"This Is Your Life," I ought to explain, is a program in which a real person's life is summarized, usually backwards, as sentimentalized by Mr. Edwards' writers can manage it. The person never knows it is his life that is about to be unveiled until he is enveiled on stage by Mr. Edwards. This time things were different.

"For the first time our heroine had to know that her life is being recreated. As her life unfolds, you'll see why," Mr. Edwards declared. The heroine was Lillian Roth, a blues singer for whom I harbored an illicit and entirely unrequited passion back in the '30s. (I didn't even know Miss Roth.) The reason she had to be consulted was that for 16 years she was an alcoholic, sinking slowly into a sort of alcoholic insanity.

Naturally, she had to be consulted before this was spread on the record and she consented, she said, in order to help persuade other alcoholics toward redemption. This, of course, gives the program a larger and more worthwhile purpose than it ordinarily has. Also, it is a heartening sign of the healthy new trend toward tough realism, a willingness to face the harder facts of life and just possibly to do something about them.

Miss Roth, still an uncommonly handsome and surprisingly young girl, submitted to this harrowing self-revelation with remarkable good humor and grace. First man out of her past to be summoned to book was a doctor whose patient she was in a mental institution. He revealed that she had been a docile patient except for one thing; she balked at folk-dancing. "We tried to go back to her early frustration to figure out why she drank," he said.

One frustration, apparently an excuse for drinking rather than the real reason, was the sudden and tragic death of her 23-year-old fiance when she was 18 years old. Ruby Keeler was brought out from the wings to tell of Miss Roth's early years—she was a star when she was 15 years old—with Earl Carroll and Texas Guinan. At 18 she was a featured player in the movies and at 18, too, she took her first drink—fermented prune juice, which would have driven me off the stuff forever.

Then came the bad years and right here Mr. Edwards' prose, which tends toward effulgence even when he hasn't much to say, began to glow like a sunset: "Glamor fades as drink followed drink and as you sink into an alcoholic stupor for 16 years." The facts were grim enough without any such embroidery. Miss Roth's first marriage in Edwards' words, "was consummated in alcohol and dissolved in alcohol." Her third husband broke her jaw. She got too drunk to attend her mother's funeral. Finally, broke, friendless and on the verge of suicide, she turned to Alcoholics Anonymous which rescued her. She hasn't had a drop in seven years.

Miss Roth's own admissions about what she persistently called "my problem" were more simple, candid and convincing than Mr. Edwards' tortured prose. "I didn't know I was an alcoholic. I liked how it put me to sleep. I didn't know I was doing anything wrong."

At some point in all these recitals, the participant bursts into tears and usually, obs intermitently from then on. Miss Roth held off longer than most but eventually the tears flowed. There was a procession of people in her life—Lita Grey Chaplin, her present husband (also an AA, her sister, Miss Roth even tore loose with a couple of her old songs—"Ain't She Sweet," "Goody Goody" and "Sing Your Sinners"—and her voice is still one of great power and clarity.

It was a gripping, if somewhat startling show, and just possibly it may have driven a few alcoholics into the arms of the AA.

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

IT IS seldom wise to let your left-hand opponent play for a contract of one in a suit with which he opened the bidding. His partner's pass tells you that your own partner probably had passed a pretty good hand in preference to overcalling. If your own cards are anywhere near to an original bid in full strength, you usually will profit by bidding or doubling, in preference to letting the auction close. The best way to do this—unless you have quite a long single suit or a two-suiter—is generally by doubling, which offers your partner more options.

There you see the bidding that should have come on this rubber deal. What actually happened, though, is that West bid 1-Spade and everybody passed. He made the contract, losing one trick in trumps, three in diamonds and one each in hearts and clubs.

That result did not seem to be of any particular importance at the moment. But one deal later, North and South made a contract of 4-Diamonds right on the head. If they, instead of West, had gained a part-score on the deal shown, they could have closed out a two-game rubber with four-odd in the minor. As it was, following that deal, East and West made a game, so that North and South eventually won a much smaller rubber as the finale of the evening's activities.

If South had made a takeout double when the 1-Spade reached him, it would have given North every possible option—a business pass, a call of 1-No Trump or a bid of any other suit at the level of two. The double would have been much wiser here than a reopening bid of 2-Diamonds, which North might have had to take out to 3-Clubs if he had a slightly different hand. With his holding, a double by South would have been taken to 2-Clubs by North. If West then tried 2-Spades over that, he could have been set.

South pleaded afterward that his failure to act was due to his side being vulnerable. That should have been an extra reason for action, since North would have needed more strength for an overcall when vulnerable, hence might have a fair hand.

Miami Of Ohio Also Added To NCAA Event

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK, March 1 (AP)—Indiana and Miami of Ohio became the latest additions today to the field for the National Collegiate Athletic Association Basketball Tournament, but ten big gaps remained in the 22-team field which opens fire March 9.

Of these ten vacancies, two can be expected to be filled momentarily. Santa Clara is set to be chosen as a Western representative at large while New England is expected to tap Holy Cross. The other eight spots must be decided by playoffs or by breaking conference log-jams.

Besides Indiana and Miami, already picked for the NCAA are Conference Champions Louisiana State, Idaho State and Lebanon Valley, plus seven specially invited teams—Fordham, Navy, DePaul, Eastern Kentucky, Notre Dame, Oklahoma City and Seattle.

The rival National Invitation Tournament, opening next Saturday at Madison Square Garden, is having an easier time of it with ten of its 12 teams in the fold, although St. Louis is included only on the provision it doesn't win the Missouri Valley crown.

The final two teams will be named tomorrow at which time the draw will be announced. Georgetown, 74-63 winner over Fordham, is a good bet for one of the berths. Brigham Young or Wyoming, whichever loses out in the Skyline race, is wanted for the other but this snarl can't be broken until next Friday.

Meanwhile, LaSalle, Seton Hall, Western Kentucky and Manhattan are seeded in that order. Other teams in the event which lasts through March 14 are Duquesne, St. John's of Brooklyn, Louisville, Tulsa and Niagara.

Braves Will Meet

The Mt. Savage Braves of the Bi-State Baseball League will meet Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the Community Building in Mt. Savage. Manager Charles Doyle has called the meeting.

The Sports Trail

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, March 1 (AP)—In the past three years three separate efforts have been made to do something about the "forgotten" kids, the 13-through-15-year-olds who were too old for Little League baseball and too young for American Legion Junior baseball.

About three years ago the Pony League was organized at Washington, Pa., and a year ago George Springer at Beckley, W. Va., formed an Intermediate League. About the same time a Little Bigger League cropped up.

All had the same purpose, to give the forlorn youngsters who were sitting out their early teens a chance to continue their baseball development uninterrupted, and under proper guidance.

Their ideas varied on technical matters, though. The Pony League wanted 75-foot baselines. The Intermediate League held out for 82-foot baselines and a shorter pitching distance, and the Little Bigger League favored regulation-sized diamonds.

Naturally, such organizations, in order to spread to a national scope, need backing, and the Little Bigger League hit that jackpot. It obtained the sponsorship of a big soft drink concern.

Springer saw the handwriting on the wall and realized he could not compete without a sponsor, so he has merged his organization with the moneyed Little Bigger League, despite the fact he already had 60 teams playing in 14 leagues. He accepted the standard diamond, conceding only eight feet on the baselines and four feet in the pitching distance.

The Pony League, to date, is going its independent way, and Vincent Williams, representing the sponsor of the Little Bigger League, sees little chance of a merger because of certain obstacles, chief among them apparently the size of the diamond.

"We conducted our own survey of some 500 recreation directors and found that 90 per cent of them favored the regulation diamond," Williams said.

"Just to be sure we are right we now are asking the National Recreation Association and the National Association of Physical Health and Recreation to conduct a survey for us."

"The 13 through 15-year-old boys usually are in high school, where they would play on regulation fields."

"Our headquarters will be in Trenton, N. J., and Dr. J. Goodner Gill, vice president of Rider College there, is president of the Little Bigger organization."

Little Bigger League competition is set up on a state level, with the state champions going to eight regional tournaments, and the winners taking part in a national tournament at Trenton.

"Right now we are operating in 31 states," Williams explained. "I'd say we have about 100 leagues with a total of 450 or 500 teams. That's all happened in one year, and we haven't tried to publicize the project yet."

It might be expected that once the organization gains momentum it will sprout like a weed, as the kids who have been graduated, because of their years, from the Little League will be eager to step up to a notch, such as a class B pro would be elated by the chance to try his luck in class A.

Anyway, it looks like happy days are here for the gangling or chubby youngsters who until recently have been hanging around with a "what'll we do?" attitude while their younger, and elder, brothers took part in well-organized baseball competition.

Now if they'll just start an organization for the guys who are too old for pro ball and too young for rocking chairs everything will be just dandy.

The highest number worn on a National Hockey League uniform is 25. It is worn by Phil Maloney, center on the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Old Germans Lose, 63-52; Keyser Regional Drawings Made

Broadway Five Snaps Locals' 9-Game String

Brewers Held To Six Points In 4th Period; Pence Gets 11 Goals

Cumberland's Old Germans did a fadeout in the final period last night and suffered their first defeat at home since December 7.

The Broadway Clowns cracked the locals' nine-game victory string on SS. Peter and Paul court last night by the score of 63-52 and thus avenged a 58-57 setback they suffered in the lid-lifter here December 3.

Crack In Final Quarter

It was an even-Stephen ball game until about midway in the final stanza when the negro aggregation reeled off 10 consecutive tallies after the Old Germans had taken the lead at 51-50. Lou Bell meshed one of two free throws to interrupt the rally. Then Curtis Johnson's basket and a foul goal by Lloyd Curtis concluded the late spurge by the Clowns who scored 13 of the last 14 points made in the game.

The Old Germans' performance in the final stanza was their poorest of the season. They were limited to six points, five of which were credited to Bob Pence, while the visitors racked up 19.

443 See Locals Lose

A gathering of 443 paying patrons witnessed the contest and saw the locals go down to defeat for the second time in 12 starts here. The Old Gees' overall record now is 11 and 3. Prior to last night's game their only loss was at the hands of the Jersey City Reds, 82-73, December 7.

At one time in the opening period the home team held an eight-point advantage at 12-4 but the Clowns rallied to tie the count at 16-16 and forged ahead on a basket by Curtis Johnson, a clever ball handler. Bill Benson meshed a foul goal. Lloyd Curtis scored a fielder and Pence registered on a doubleheader and the period ended 19-18 in favor of the Broadway quint.

Pence's goal sent the Brewers ahead at 20-19 as the second period got under way and Johnson's basket moved the Clowns in front and they were still there at intermission, 34-29.

Jim Clevenger's foul goal and Boor's goal followed by Pence's basket tied the score at 34-34 early in the third heat and before this rally subsided the Old Germans had reeled off 12 consecutive points that gave them a 41-34 advantage. Clevenger's foul and goal by Pence, Lou Bell and Roy Lester wound up the rally before Curtis and Moe Mozak banged in fielders for the visitors. The Old Germans were ahead 46-44 when the third period closed.

Ten Point Rally Decides

Johnson's goal tied it up at 46-46 as the final period opened. Curtis and Benson connected on field shots to give the Clowns a 50-49 advantage. Two goals and a free throw by Pence enabled the Old Germans to take the lead at 51-50. Then the roof fell in. Johnson scored a field goal, Benson a foul.

Rickey Declares Kiner Is Holdout

HAVANA, Cuba, March 1 — General Manager Branch Rickey of the Pittsburgh Pirates today declared Home Run King Ralph Kiner a holdout as of midnight.

Irked at Kiner's failure to report to training camp, Rickey stated:

1. He recognizes no agreement with Kiner, regardless of Kiner's thoughts on the matter.

2. There are no deals pending to trade Kiner.

3. New contract negotiations must start from the beginning.

Commenting on reports that Kiner might be traded to the Philadelphia Phillies for four players and a bundle of cash, Rickey said he talked about a trade Feb. 17 with Bob Carpenter, Philly president. But Rickey said he hasn't heard from Carpenter, adding: "I believe he's lost interest in dealing with us."

Kiner mailed a letter to Rickey at Pittsburgh last week in which he said he accepted contract terms. Kiner indicated he would receive close to $75,500—a cut from a reported $90,000 last year—and wouldn't have to report for training until March 15.

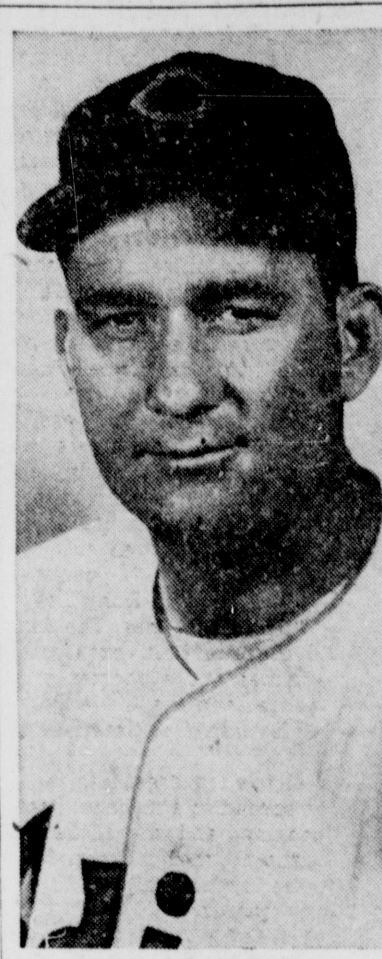

Wheeling Cops Title

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., March 1 — Wheeling Central rocketed to a 25-9 first-quarter lead then matched Fairmont St. Peter's point-for-point to win its fifth straight West Virginia Catholic high school basketball championship tonight, 73-60.

Hot Stove To Elect

The Cumberland Hot Stove League will elect officers at a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Cumberland Brewery.

A president, vice president, secretary-treasurer and seven members of the board will be elected.

PITCHER BOB LEMON has signed with the Cleveland Indians for $45,000 for the season, making him, temporarily at least, the highest paid player in the American league. (International)

Dayton Tops Seton Hall

Pirates Lose First Of 28 Games, 71-65

DAYTON, O., March 1 — A University of Dayton team which has been beaten 13 times in 27 games this season, knocked off previously unbeaten Seton Hall, the nation's top-ranked collegiate basketball team, 71-65, in one of the biggest upsets of the season tonight.

The Dayton starting five, going all the way, held Walter Dukes, the nation's third ranked scorer to 19 points. This was his fourth lowest total of the season. With Dukes bottled up, Seton Hall never had a chance. Dayton had never worse than a tie and led most of the way.

Seton Hall went down to its first defeat in 28 games and now seems destined to topple from the top rung in the Associated Press poll for the first time in seven weeks.

Forward Jim Paxson was the key cog in the Dayton machine. He flipped in 23 points.

Five Deadlocked In Houston Open

Playoff Set Today For $10,200 Cash

HOUSTON, Tex., March 1 (INS) — Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., missed a three-foot putt on the 18th green today to throw the $20,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament into a five-way tie at the end of 72 holes.

Middlecoff and the other four players who are deadlocked with five under par 283's for the tourney will play off the tie in a special 18-hole match tomorrow on the Memorial Park course.

They will contest for $10,200 in prize money.

The four deadlocked with Middlecoff are Shelley Mayfield of Cedarhurst, N. Y.; ex-Australian Jim Ferrier of San Francisco; Earl Stewart, Jr., of Dallas; and Bill Nary of Los Angeles.

Middlecoff led the field by a stroke following the third round yesterday and would have won first money in the final round if he had sunk the short putt.

But he missed it for a final round par 72 for the 18 holes.

Dayton Tops Seton Hall

Pirates Lose First Of 28 Games, 71-65

DAYTON, O., March 1 — A University of Dayton team which has been beaten 13 times in 27 games this season, knocked off previously unbeaten Seton Hall, the nation's top-ranked collegiate basketball team, 71-65, in one of the biggest upsets of the season to night.

The Dayton starting five, going all the way, held Walter Dukes, the nation's third ranked scorer to 19 points. This was his fourth lowest total of the season. With Dukes bottled up, Seton Hall never had a chance. Dayton had never won a game by a tie and led most of the way.

Seton Hall went down to its first defeat in 28 games and now seems destined to topple from the top rung in the Associated Press poll for the first time in seven weeks.

Forward Jim Paxson was the key cog in the Dayton machine. He flipped in 23 points.

Rickey Declares Kiner Is Holdout

HAVANA, Cuba, March 1 — General Manager Branch Rickey of the Pittsburgh Pirates today declared Home Run King Ralph Kiner a holdout as of midnight.

Irked at Kiner's failure to report to training camp, Rickey stated:

1. He recognizes no agreement with Kiner, regardless of Kiner's thoughts on the matter.
2. There are no deals pending to trade Kiner.
3. New contract negotiations must start from the beginning.

Commenting on reports that Kiner might be traded to the Philadelphia Phillies for four players and a bundle of cash, Rickey said he talked about a trade Feb. 17 with Bob Carpenter, Philly president. But Rickey said he hasn't heard from Carpenter, adding:

"I believe he's lost interest in dealing with us."

Kiner mailed a letter to Rickey at Pittsburgh last week in which he said he accepted contract terms. Kiner indicated he would receive close to $76,500—a cut from a reported $90,000 last year—and wouldn't have to report for training until March 15.

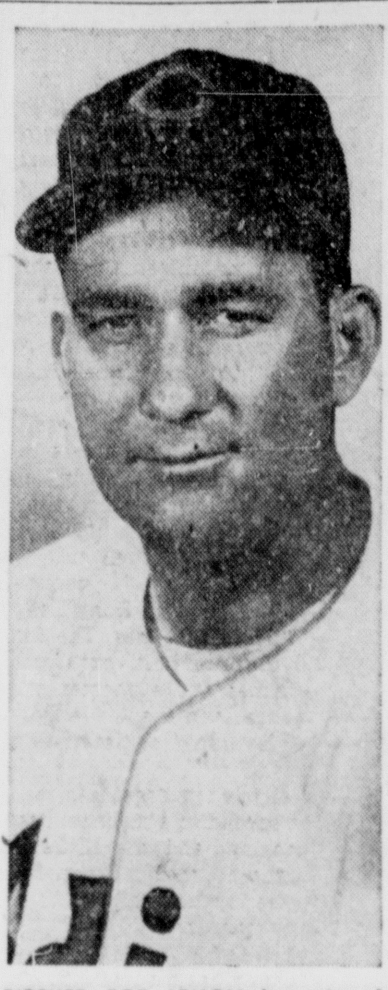

Wheeling Cops Title

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., March 1 — Wheeling Central rocketed to a 25-9 first-quarter lead then matched Fairmont St. Peter's point-for-point to win its fifth straight West Virginia Catholic high school basketball championship tonight, 73-60.

Hot Stove To Elect

The Cumberland Hot Stove League will elect officers at a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Cumberland Brewery.

A president, vice president, secretary-treasurer and seven members of the board will be elected.

PITCHER BOB LEMON has signed with the Cleveland Indians for $45,000 for the season, making him, temporarily at least, the highest paid player in the American league. (International)

Parsons, Elkins Play Thursday For Sectional Crown

PARSONS, W. Va., March 1 — Elkins High School of Randolph county and Parsons High School of Tucker county will clash Thursday night at the Parsons High School gym at 8:15 o'clock in a basketball game that will decide the Class "A" championship of Section 13, Region 4.

Officials will be Charles Hockenberry of Morgantown and John Warash of Fairmont.

Parsons and Elkins Reserves will clash in the preliminary game at 7 o'clock.

An all-tournament team and the best cheer leader will be selected.

Elkins defeated Parsons twice during the regular season, 49-47 and 53-42.

Babe Zaharias Wins Tourney

SARASOTA, Fla., March 1 (INS) — Mrs. Babe Zaharias shot a three-under-par 73 today to win the Sarasota Open Golf Tournament by seven strokes.

Mrs. Zaharias, now of Tampa, Fla., finished the 54-hole tourney with a stroke total of 217—11 under the wire.

Betsy Rawls of Austin, Tex., carded a 75 and wound up in second place with 224.

The victory was the Babe's first in medal play competition since she underwent an operation last May.

Her victory was worth $850 in prize money.

Gus Accepts Terms

SARASOTA, Fla., March 1 — Catcher Gus Niarhos accepted terms with the Red Sox today and there were indications that Pitcher Maurice McDermott, the Boston club's only other holdout, would do the same shortly.

General Manager Joe Cronin who arrived here last night, conferred with McDermott for more than an hour today and said "we're not very far apart."

Minor injuries to Outfielders Hoot Evers and Jim Piersall marred today's three-hour practice session. Evers came up with a sore throwing arm and Piersall pulled a muscle in his right leg.

Two other outfielders, Gene Stephens and Archie Wilson, are still favoring sprained ankles.

Baseball Meeting

A meeting of the Wellersburg team of the Pen-Mar Baseball League will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Community School Building, Wellersburg.

KANSAS CITY — West Santee of Kansas ran the fastest indoor mile in the Big Seven history, 4:04.3, in the finals of the conference's track meet.

Five Deadlocked In Houston Open

Playoff Set Today For $10,200 Cash

HOUSTON, Tex., March 1 (INS) — Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., missed a three-foot putt on the 18th green today to throw the $20,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament into a five-way tie at the end of 72 holes.

Middlecoff and the other four players who are deadlocked with five under par 283's for the tourney will play off the tie in a special 18-hole match tomorrow on the Memorial Park course.

They will contest for $10,200 in prize money.

The four deadlocked with Middlecoff are Shelley Mayfield of Cedarhurst, N. Y.; ex-Australian Jim Ferrier of San Francisco; Earl Stewart, Jr., of Dallas; and Bill Nary of Los Angeles.

Middlecoff led the field by a stroke following the third round yesterday and would have won first money in the final round if he had sunk the short putt.

But he missed it for a final round par 72 for the 18 holes.

Six Persons Injured In Two Area Mishaps

White House Employees Hospitalized

Three persons were hospitalized and three others injured in two separate highway accidents which occurred in the area over the weekend.

In "fair" condition at Memorial Hospital is Donald Cavey, 22, of Cumberland. X-rays have been taken but results were not known last night.

Floor Leader Fires Blast At Md. Road Plan

Details Demanded On Huge Program

ANNAPOLIS, March 1 (AP)—The powerful voice of the Democratic floor leader in the House today demanded that the State Roads Commission get more specific in its ambitious building program.

Del. Logan (D-Carolina) asked the commission and its advisory committee to prepare at least two amendments to the bills calling for a 12-year expenditure of $68 million dollars on Maryland highways.

"I have asked them to correct what I consider to be gross deficiencies in their proposal," said the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Furthermore, Logan said he's going to ask that the program at first be limited to four years.

The committee has completed public hearings on the bills and is holding up action on them until after the budget is passed. The Senate just started airing the proposals last week and the immediate reaction there was one of criticism.

Logan found fault with the proposals on the basis of their generality. While the commission has prepared a voluminous study on which roads are to be built and modernized, they are separate and not included in the bills.

The House floor leader said he realized it is not practical to put everything into law, but feels it can be more specific than in the original drafts of the bills.

"I want them to pin down the exact amount of proposed building by county," he said. "This should be done either by a percentage of the projected total expenditure or on a par mile basis within each county."

The Roads Commission presented Logan's committee with a percentage breakdown of the miles of road in each county which are to come under the program. But the commission is not bound to these percentages since they are not included in the bills.

"Just suppose the present commissioners all die tomorrow," Logan said, "and a new commission has different ideas about which roads should be built. Then they could discard the breakdown given us and build anywhere they want."

Logan also has asked the commission and Joseph D. Buscher, assistant attorney general assigned to it, to prepare an amendment which will specify the roads on which tolls are to be charged.

"They have a study by an expert engineering firm on which roads would be suitable for charging tolls," Logan said. "They should specify which ones they are going to accept as such and write them into the bill relating to revenues. Then we'll know where we're going."

It is recommended that the gasoline tax be raised one cent and motor vehicle registration fees increased to help finance the program. The engineering firm has estimated the amount of money which certain roads could raise by charging tolls.

Logan said if these estimates were included it might be possible to ease the amount by which registration fees would have to be increased. Under present plans, the fee on ordinary passenger cars would go up from $15 to $20.

Logan said the program was "grossly deficient" as regards farm-to-market roads in rural counties. He said he wants included in the program, the amount of money to be spent for such roads in each county. He also said counties themselves should be permitted to go ahead with state money to build up farm-to-market roads if necessary.

Vision Shortcomings Cause Many Automobile Accidents

Unknown shortcomings in eyesight rank high on the list of causes of automobile accidents, Dr. William H. Engel, Jr., president of the Maryland Optometric Association, declared here yesterday in a statement issued in connection with Save Your Vision Week, March 1-7.

"We all know that we must see properly to drive safely," Dr. Engel said, "but studies covering thousands of drivers indicate that about 15 per cent of us have dangerous visual handicaps without being aware of them."

"Eyesight should be re-tested every year, or at each renewal of a driver's license, so that the driver is made aware of any eyesight problems that are creeping up on him with age, or for any other reason."

Dr. Engel said that the most common visual handicap among

Another occupant of the automobile which turned over after hitting a culvert in Wiley Ford early yesterday morning was Robert Lease, 25, also of Cumberland. He was treated and later released from the hospital.

Trooper W. F. Webley, of the West Virginia State Police said the accident occurred shortly after midnight as the car left the highway, hit a culvert, flipped over on its side and was demolished. Trooper Bowley was notified at 1:10 a. m. and when he arrived at the scene, both men had been taken to the hospital.

Washingtonians Hurt

Two persons, who police said are employed at the White House in Washington, were admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital later in the morning suffering injuries sustained when the auto they were riding hit an icy spot along Route 220 near Centerville, Pa. and turned over several times.

Miss Helen Elizabeth Weaver, about 28, of Hanover, Pa., a member of the WAVES, received lacerations and has been x-rayed. The driver of the car, Jack Good, 30, of Pittsburgh, has also been x-rayed.

Two other passengers in the car were treated at the hospital and have returned to Washington by train. The mishap, according to Pvt. Robert M. Morrison, of the Pennsylvania State Police, occurred about 2:30 a. m.

The victims were taken to the hospital by a passing motorist, police said. Good was traveling north on Route 220 when he hit an icy spot about two and one-half miles north of Centerville.

Snaps Utility Pole

The car left the highway, struck a bank on the right side of the road, snapped a utility pole, turned over several times and skidded along the highway on its roof stopping on the left side of the road about 300 feet from the icy spot. The vehicle was demolished police said.

The four persons were enroute from Washington to Pittsburgh at the time of the accident. No charges have been preferred.

Col. Robert Schultz, U. S. Army, who came here from Washington yesterday afternoon to visit the two victims, was reluctant to give out any information about them.

Both were reported to have been employed at the White House, with Miss Weaver as a secretary. Col. Schultz did not think that any publicity would be beneficial to the two persons and said world-wide news was more important to the readers.

Weather

The Weather Bureau predicts snow for the Cumberland area this afternoon or night with skies cloudy all day. Yesterday was windy and cold with temperature only reaching to 40 for the day. Constitution Park weather station reported low as 25 and at 8:30 p. m. mercury stood at 30. Yesterday was the coldest day in the past eight days when the area felt sunny, spring-like weather.

News In Brief

Central firemen answered a false alarm call Saturday at 5:04 p. m. to the Kenneweg Company, 184 Baltimore Street. Box 46 was pulled.

East Side fire fighters extinguished a brush blaze on Ridgeway Terrace at 5:08 p. m., and South End Company 2 checked a grass fire at 107 Offutt Street about 1:40 p. m. No damage was reported.

Charles F. Holleman, son of Mrs. C. B. Holleman of Cumberland, recently joined the Lexington (Ky.) Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol. He was assigned to the operations section.

Drivers lack of proper acuity—ability to see and focus clearly at distances from arm's length to 50 yards. This shortcoming, he said, can almost always be corrected with the proper glasses, but "night blindness," inadequate side vision, and lack of ability to judge space and distance relationships, also important to safety, are less easily corrected.

"The driver who is aware of a shortcoming will usually have it corrected, or if that is not possible, he will learn to compensate for it," Dr. Engel said. "If he knows that he is not up to par in side vision, for instance, he will make a practice of turning his head frequently to check possible danger from the side."

"Safety not an accident, and awareness of visual handicaps is a primary requirement for greater highway safety."

Two Alarms Checked

City firemen answered two calls yesterday morning. South End checked a false alarm on Winifred Road at 10:30 a. m., while Central extinguished a grass fire at Henderson Avenue and Knox Street at 11:45 a. m.

Scout Leaders Map Program For New Year

More than 50 Scout leaders of Potomac Council met in six committees last week at a "Top Hand" meeting at Potomac State School to map the Council's 1953 program. Council President Miles G. Thompson was in charge of the event.

The Camping and activities committee headed by Alton Portney approved plans for the National Troop Camping Award. Each troop in the Council will set up objectives on an 1953 outdoor program which will qualify them for the certificate.

Camp Opens June 20

Members also formulated plans for the summer camping agenda. Camp Potomac near Oldtown will open June 20 and will run for five weeks. Officials said additional weeks of camping will be added if required. Troops or individuals may camp for one or more weeks.

Other business of the group included a discussion on the Council Camporee slated May 15 to 17 in the New Creek District and the proposed delegation to the National Jamboree in California this July. Scouts reported that a high percentage will attend the event, and urged others interested in attending to make reservations at the Council office immediately. The committee will meet again March 26 at the Council office.

James C. Warden, chairman of the Council organization and extension committee, met with district representatives to formulate a Scouting extension program. Plans include the organization of 13 new units in the Council this year and hiking the total membership to 1,790. The roster now contains 1,500 members.

The group also heard a detail explanation of charter reviews and presentations. The committee meets again March 17 at Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

The leadership training committee headed by David Nuzum mapped plans for the Cub "Pow Wow" scheduled Saturday evening and afternoon, March 21 at Potomac State Science Building. The group also slated a Scoutmaster training course to be held April 11 and 12 at Camp Potomac. Representatives were urged to see that all leaders needing training attend the sessions.

Training Courses Set

As part of the year's training program, members discussed plans for an Explorer leaders course, a Junior leaders course and an advanced Scoutmaster training course.

The Council advancement committee adopted the national "Be Prepared" program calling for 400 First Class Scouts by the end of the year. The group, which met with Chairman Dr. Albert Cook, also outlined an overall advancement program and discussed plans to correct some of the weak points in the setup. The committee's next meeting will be on May 5 at Frostburg.

Council Commissioner Julian G. Patrick met with district commissioners who considered definite assignments of units to each member, and adopted a plan for regular monthly visits to each unit. They will meet April 16 at West-ernport.

District committee chairmen met with Council President Thompson who stressed a need for additional manpower if the goals of the Council for 1953 are to be achieved.

A guest at the event was James Gelwick, of Philadelphia, deputy regional executive, who attended the meeting as part of a three-day visit to the Council. He discussed the Council's accomplishments of 1952 and goals of the coming year.

The next "Top Hand" meeting will be held May 28 at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Public School
Vo-Ag Survey
Is Scheduled

A three-man committee of agricultural educators will be in Allegany County next week to conduct a survey of the vocational agriculture program conducted in the county school system, Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster announced yesterday afternoon.

Public School Vo-Ag Survey Is Scheduled

These men plan to determine whether vocational agricultural should be expanded or contracted and what changes in emphasis should be made.

Webster stressed that this information should prove helpful in carrying out part of the proposed $5,985,000 county school construction program in the next five or six years.

The two schools which give greatest emphasis to vocational agriculture in Allegany County are Flintstone and Oldtown High Schools. Both are scheduled for additional classrooms, gymnasiums, auditoriums and cafeterias and Flintstone also will have a sewage disposal plant.

A $54,000 shop building, primarily for vocational agriculture use, is now being constructed at Flintstone by George Construction Company.

The survey may show that changes should be made in plans for the additions to the two rural schools, Webster believes.

McDonald, Ahalt and Dr. Hill are scheduled to confer with the school superintendent Wednesday evening before beginning their survey.

Thursday they will visit the five schools in Allegany County which offer some agriculture program. They will talk with students about the vocational and general agriculture, will confer with James H. House, supervisor of vocational agriculture, and with County Agent Ralph H. McHenry about farming in this county.

Friday they will tour the county to examine the best farm land to find out what possible agriculture expansion might be carried out.

Post Office Will Issue Two Commemorative Stamps

The Post Office Department today will issue two new commemorative three-cent postage stamps, according to Thomas F. Conlon, local postmaster. They will be on sale at the local post office.

The two stamps are a Washington Territory commemorative stamp to be issued today through the Ohio Statehood commemorative stamp issued today through the Chillicothe, Ohio, post office.

The new Washington Territory stamp, green in color, portrays an early pioneer family gazing at a typical territorial scene embracing an expanse of water with mountain ranges rising in the distance.

The left-hand portion of the view is obscured by a centennial seal portraying a covered wagon drawn by oxen with an Indian seated in the foreground. Below the seal are depicted some of the products for which Washington has become economically important.

The Ohio Statehood stamp is brown in color. The central design of the stamp is an outline of the state of Ohio, which provides a flat-topped background for the Great Seal of the state.

Defining each side of the stamp are two dark vertical panels, enclosing a row of eight stars in each panel, representing the 16 states prior to the admission of Ohio to the Union. The 17th star, representing Ohio, appears in the top center directly over the top border of the state.

Insurance For Happiness

By RABBI J. SCHMELMAN

Most of us carry insurance of some form or another. We need very little persuasion to take some form of protection for our loved ones. Insurance is not always easy to sell. One lieutenant failed to convince some of his troops to take out GI insurance until a sergeant pointed out that if government had to pay out $10,000 for every man killed, and nothing for the insured, it would be easy to figure out who would be sent to the front first.

While this may not be true, insurance itself is based on three good principles. One — spread the risk. By many people saving at once, the risks of an early death are obviated. Two — Cushion Disaster. This applies to all insurance. It doesn't prevent disaster, but keeps it within bounds. Three — Security of Mind. A insured man knows his family will not face poverty as well as bereavement.

There is another form of insurance, and it goes by the name of religion. It is also based on these three principles. It spread the risk. Even as no man can take out insurance by himself, so, too, can no man be virtuous by himself. A just state has a hard time in a warring world. Religion tries to teach all people the principles on which a peaceful world can be built.

Religion cushions disaster. Funeral religion is not the highest type of religion, but it is one aspect. Rainy-day faith is produced by fair-weather practice. Rickenbacker prayed on his raft, because he learned about prayer in a religious institution. Religion gave him the cushion for his disaster.

Religion gives security of mind and soul. First, because it offers a coherent philosophy of life. No man can live normally without a point of view. Psychiatric wards are full of people for whom life has lost its meaning. Fascism, communism fill the vacuums of a pointless life. Religion gives a worthwhile view of life. It provides a touchstone for happiness. The religious way, the unselfish way, is the happy way of life. Many examples can be cited from personal experience.

Religion is insurance for happiness. And it is free. Its salesmen want no commission. It is not rationed nor does it have priorities. It is this which Isaiah would have sold as he stood in the market place hawking his wares: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye, buy, and eat, come ye, buy wine, and milk without money and without price. Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? And your labor for that which does not satisfy? Hearken diligently unto me and eat that which is good and let your soul delight itself in fatness."

Firemen Approve Delegation Action

The Allegany and Garrett County Volunteer Firemen's Association, meeting yesterday at the Baltimore Pike Volunteer Fire Company, went through the formality of approving the action of the County Delegation in reporting out favorably a bill which will give the county volunteer fire companies additional funds.

This bill calls for an appropriation of $22,025 for the Allegany County volunteer fire companies in the coming fiscal year, some $6,350 more than this year. All companies except Chapel Hill and Cumberland Hose Company, the two inactive local organizations, are in line for increases.

Next meeting of the association will be held Sunday, April 12, at the Tri-Towns Fire Company in Piedmont. Twenty-three of the 31 companies in the association were represented yesterday. The Baltimore Pike Auxiliary served a luncheon after the meeting.

For the benefit of collectors desiring stamps of selected quality for philatelic use, the two stamps will be available at the Philatelic Agency, Post Office Department, Washington 25, D. C.

Gibson Praises Work Of FOE At Memorial Event

Record Crowd Attends Local Lodge Service

At the memorial service of Cumberland Aerie 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, yesterday afternoon at the organization's hall, Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, told approximately 500 attendees that the FOE is doing a wonderful job for the betterment of mankind, but there was still plenty of work to be done by individuals.

Speaking to one of the largest crowds ever to attend the annual event, Gibson praised accomplishments of the order and the great job it is doing for democracy. The talk, which also honored deceased members and founders of the organization, was sprinkled with bits of verse and poetry.

Memorial Custom

"We have faith in our Heavenly Father's House, yet when death comes to our loved ones, there are broken hearts that can never be healed without access to that treasure house of remembrance, hence, our memorial service which has been a custom of many generations of men."

"We have praised our departed not for their worldly gains, or their temporal powers or positions they may have held in this life, but rather for those things that emanate from their hearts, their quite unostentatious character, their real worth as members of society."

"As it is not given to us as individuals, either by birth or circumstance, to do all the things our hearts dictate, we have our great fraternal organizations where men can pool their resources, so to speak, and work together for the benefit of our fellow men."

Gibson added, "The members of FOE have for more than 50 years contributed to the general welfare of the American people. They have sponsored and carried through to successful conclusion legislation that has given pensions to mothers and benefits to the aged, thereby substituting comfort for misery. They were sponsors of the Social Security Act; recognized and saw the need for a day set aside for the mothers of America, contributed nearly $200,000 to boys towns."

Three Candidates To Be On Ballot In Oakland Vote

Only three candidates will be on the ballot for three city offices in the Oakland municipal election Monday, March 9, City Clerk Arthur Lawton said last night.

That means there will be no contest in this year's voting, since only three aspirants had filed for posts on the City Council when the deadline for entering the race passed at 4 p. m. Friday.

Candidates include Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, veteran councilman; Emerick Dusic, also an incumbent, and Donald M. Browning, 24-year-old newcomer to Oakland politics.

Harry F. Stemple, the only other councilman whose term expires, decided not to run for office again this year.

Oakland elects a mayor and three councilmen every even-numbered year. In the years between, three councilmen are elected. Holdovers this year are Mayor Joseph Hinebaugh and Councilmen Maurice Brookhart, Walter Hardesty and William Rees.

Miss Julia Ward, city treasurer, has filed notice of her candidacy for re-election.

Browning, who filed Friday was the last of the council candidates to enter the race. He is an Air Force veteran of World War II, having served in France. He and his father operate the Browning self-service food market in Oakland.

The city's voters will go to the polls between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. on March 9. About 600 voters are registered, but observers are expecting an extremely light turnout because of the death of candidates.

March Marks Beginning Of Forest Fire Danger

March arrived yesterday and with it came the controlled burning season in Maryland because of the danger of forest fires at this time of the year, according to District Forester William H. Johnson.

During March, April and May burning regulations apply only to burning within 200 feet of wood-land or inflammable material that could ignite and carry fire to woodland outside the limits of incorporated towns. Uncontrolled burning of debris is prohibited at all times.

In the spring months burning is permissible only after 4 p. m. and before midnight except when the ground is covered with snow.

State law provides a number of specific protective measures for burning between 4 p. m. and midnight.

The protective measures:

Provide sufficient help, with tools, to prevent the fire from escaping.

Have at least one watchman on the ground until the last spark is out.

These provisions are not necessary if there is a natural firebreak of at least 10 feet in width free of inflammable material surrounding the area to be burned.

Bus Drivers Ratify New Contract

Brief Stoppage Ends Last Night

Cumberland Transit Lines

bus drivers went back to work at 7 o'clock last night after a majority of the members of Local 1110, Bus Drivers Union, AFL, voted to accept an offer submitted by the company only about 13 hours after the work stoppage began.

The contract expired at midnight Saturday and the new pact was ratified by the membership about 3:30 p. m. yesterday at a meeting at the Building and Construction Trades Council Hall on Frederick Street.

Two Cents Boost

James H. Morrison, president of Local 1110, said that the offer, submitted at a final negotiation session at 1:30 p. m. yesterday at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, will give all 38 drivers and five shop employees an across the board two cents an hour wage boost plus some five other benefits.

Guy M. Davis, proprietor of the Cumberland Transit Lines, announced shortly after the ratification that terms of the settlement of the bus stoppage involves a cost for the year of about $6,800.

Davis emphasized that his over-all losses since purchasing the operation from the Potomac Edison Company four years ago are in excess of $40,000. He said he was not really able to grant the increases agreed upon. However, he added, to prevent the inconvenience which would be caused the public by a strike and in the hope that the revenues of the bus operation would improve he had finally agreed to the demands made upon him.

No Lost Pay

The brief stoppage of bus service for part of yesterday will not result in loss of pay for any of the bus drivers or shop employees involved in the dispute. One of the provisions of the final offer was that drivers and shop employees who were scheduled to work yesterday will be compensated for loss of time that day.

Because the transit company runs a light schedule on Sunday only about 15 men had been scheduled to work yesterday.

The hourly wage provision of the contract will bring the pay of drivers to $1.52 an hour and for mechanics $1.53 an hour.

Morrison also disclosed other provisions of the new contract which runs for one year, until midnight February 28,

Floor Leader Fires Blast At Md. Road Plan

Details Demanded On Huge Program

ANNAPOLIS, March 1 (AP)—The powerful voice of the Democratic floor leader in the House today demanded that the State Roads Commission get more specific in its ambitious building program.

Del. Logan (D-Carolina) asked the commission and its advisory counsel to prepare at least two amendments to the bills calling for a 12-year expenditure of 568 million dollars on Maryland highways.

"I have asked them to correct what I consider to be gross deficiencies in their proposal," said the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Furthermore, Logan said he's going to ask that the program at first be limited to four years.

The committee has completed public hearings on the bills and is holding up action on them until after the budget is passed. The Senate just started airing the proposals last week and the immediate reaction there was one of criticism.

Logan found fault with the proposals on the basis of their generality. While the commission has prepared a voluminous study on which roads are to be built and modernized, they are separate and not included in the bills.

The House floor leader said he realized it is not practical to put everything into law, but feels it can be more specific than in the original drafts of the bills.

"I want them to pin down the exact amount of proposed building county by county," he said. "This should be done either by a percentage of the projected total expenditure or on a par mile basis within each county."

The Roads Commission presented Logan's committee with a percentage breakdown of the miles of road in each county which are to come under the program. But the commission is not bound to these percentages since they are not included in the bills.

"Just suppose the present commissioners all die tomorrow," Logan said, "and a new commission has different ideas about which roads should be built. Then they could discard the breakdown given us and build anywhere they want."

Logan also has asked the commission and Joseph D. Buscher, assistant attorney general assigned to it, to prepare an amendment which will specify the roads on which tolls are to be charged.

"They have a study by an expert engineering firm on which roads would be suitable for charging tolls," Logan said. "They should specify which ones they are going to accept as such and write them into the bill relating to revenues. Then we'll know where we're going."

It is recommended that the gasoline tax be raised one cent and motor vehicle registration fees increased to help finance the program. The engineering firm has estimated the amount of money which certain roads could raise by charging tolls.

Logan said if these estimates were included it might be possible to ease the amount by which registration fees would have to be increased. Under present plans, the fee on ordinary passenger cars would go up from $15 to $20.

Logan said the program was "grossly deficient" as regards farm-to-market roads in rural counties. He said he wants included in the program, the amount of money to be spent for such roads in each county. He also said counties themselves should be permitted to go ahead with state money to build up farm-to-market roads if necessary.

Another occupant of the automobile which turned over after hitting a culvert in Wiley Ford early yesterday morning was Robert Lease, 25, also of Cumberland. He was treated and later released from the hospital.

Trooper W. F. Webley, of the West Virginia State Police said the accident occurred shortly after midnight as the car left the highway, hit a culvert, flipped over on its side and was demolished. Trooper Bowley was notified at 1:10 a. m. and when he arrived at the scene, both men had been taken to the hospital.

Washingtons Hurt

Two persons, who police said are employed at the White House in Washington, were admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital later in the morning suffering injuries sustained when the auto they were riding hit an icy spot along Route 220 near Centerville, Pa. and turned over several times.

Miss Helen Elizabeth Weaver, about 28, of Hanover, Pa., a member of the WAVE, received lacerations and has been x-rayed. The driver of the car, Jack Good, 30, of Pittsburgh, has also been x-rayed.

Two other passengers in the car were treated at the hospital and have returned to Washington by train. The mishap, according to Pvt. Robert M. Morrison, of the Pennsylvania State Police, occurred about 2:30 a. m.

The victims were taken to the hospital by a passing motorist, police said. Good was traveling north on Route 220 when he hit an icy spot about two and one-half miles north of Centerville.

Snaps Utility Pole

The car left the highway, struck a bank on the right side of the road, snapped a utility pole, turned over several times and skidded along the highway on its roof stopping on the left side of the road about 300 feet from the icy spot. The vehicle was demolished police said.

The four persons were enroute from Washington to Pittsburgh at the time of the accident. No charges have been preferred.

Col. Robert Schultz, U. S. Army, who came here from Washington yesterday afternoon to visit the two victims, was reluctant to give out any information about them.

Both were reported to have been employed at the White House, with Miss Weaver as a secretary. Col. Schultz did not think that any publicity would be beneficial to the two persons and said world-wide news was more important to the readers.

Scout Leaders Map Program For New Year

More than 50 Scout leaders of Potomac Council met in six committees last week at a "Top Hand" meeting at Potomac State School, to map the Council's 1953 program. Council President Miles G. Thompson was in charge of the event.

The Camping and activities committee headed by Alton Fortney, approved plans for the National Troop Camping Award. Each troop in the Council will set up objectives on an 1953 outdoor program which will qualify them for the certificate.

Camp Opens June 20

Members also formulated plans for the summer camping agenda. Camp Potomac near Oldtown will open June 20 and will run for five weeks. Officials said additional weeks of camping will be added if required. Troops or individuals may camp for one or more weeks.

Other business of the group included a discussion on the Council Camporee slated May 15 to 17 in the New Creek District and the proposed delegation to the National Jamboree in California this July. Scouters reported that a high percentage will attend the event, and urged others interested in attending to make reservations at the Council office immediately. The committee will meet again March 26 at the Council office.

James C. Warden, chairman of the Council organization and extension committee, met with district representatives to formulate a Scouting extension program. Plans include the organization of 13 new units in the Council this year and hiking the total membership to 1,750. The roster now contains 1,500 members.

The group also heard a detail explanation of charter reviews and presentations. The committee meets again March 17 at Kelly Springfield Tire Company.

The leadership training committee headed by David Nuzum mapped plans for the Cub "Pow Wow" scheduled Saturday evening and afternoon, March 21 at Potomac State Science Building. The group also slated a Scoutmaster training course to be held April 11 and 12 at Camp Potomac. Representatives were urged to see that all leaders needing training attend the sessions.

Training Courses Set

As part of the year's training program, members discussed plans for an Explorer leaders course, a Junior leaders course and an advanced Scoutmaster training course.

The Council advancement committee adopted the national "Be Prepared" program calling for 400 First Class Scouts by the end of the year. The group, which met with Chairman Dr. Albert Cook, also outlined an overall advancement program and discussed plans to correct some of the weak points in the setup. The committee's next meeting will be on May 5 at Frostburg.

Council Commissioner Julian G. Patrick met with district commissioners who considered definite assignments of units to each member, and adopted a plan for regular monthly visits to each unit. They will meet April 16 at West-ernport.

District committee chairmen met with Council President Thompson who stressed a need for additional manpower if the goals of the Council for 1953 are to be achieved.

A guest at the event was James Gellwicks, of Philadelphia, deputy regional executive, who attended the meeting as part of a three-day visit to the Council. He discussed the Council's accomplishments of 1952 and goals of the coming year.

The next "Top Hand" meeting will be held May 28 at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Two Alarms Checked

City firemen answered two calls yesterday morning. South E and checked a false alarm on Winfield Road at 10:30 a.m., while Central extinguished a grass fire at Henderson Avenue and Knox Street at 11:45 a. m.

Public School Vo-Ag Survey Is Scheduled

A three-man committee of agricultural educators will be in Allegany County next week to conduct a survey of the vocational agriculture program conducted in the county school system. Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster announced yesterday afternoon.

Harry M. McDonald, a native of Barton and now state supervisor of vocational agriculture, will be here with Arthur M. Ahalt, head of the Agriculture Education Department at the University of Maryland, and Dr. Charles W. Hill, in charge of the Rural Organization Department at West Virginia University.

These men plan to determine whether vocational agriculture should be expanded or contracted and what changes in emphasis should be made.

Webster stressed that this information should prove helpful in carrying out part of the proposed $5,985,000 county school construction program in the next five or six years.

The two schools which give greatest emphasis to vocational agriculture in Allegany County are Flintstone and Oldtown High Schools. Both are scheduled for additional classrooms, gymnasiums-auditoriums and cafeterias and Flintstone also will have a sewage disposal plant.

A $54,000 shop building, primarily for vocational agriculture use, is now being constructed at Flintstone by George Construction Company.

The survey may show that changes should be made in plans for the additions to the two rural schools, Webster believes.

McDonald, Ahalt and Dr. Hill are scheduled to confer with the school superintendent Wednesday evening before beginning their survey.

Thursday they will visit the five schools in Allegany County which offer some agriculture program. They will talk with students about both vocational and general agriculture, will confer with James H. House, supervisor of vocational agriculture, and with County Agent Ralph H. McHenry about farming in this county.

Friday they will tour the county to examine the best farm land to find out what possible agriculture expansion might be carried out.

Insurance For Happiness

By RABBI J. SCHIMELMAN

Most of us carry insurance of some form or another. We need very little persuasion to take some form of protection for our loved ones. Insurance is not always easy to sell. One lieutenant failed to convince some of his troops to take out GI insurance until a sergeant pointed out that if government had to pay out $10,000 for every man killed, and nothing for the insured, it would be easy to figure out who would be sent to the front first.

While this may not be true, insurance itself is based on three good principles. One — spread the risk. By many people saving at once, the risks of an early death are obviated. Two — Cushion Disaster. This applies to all insurance. It doesn't prevent disaster, but keeps it within bounds. Three — Security of Mind. A insured man knows his family will not face poverty as well as bereavement.

There is another form of insurance, and it goes by the name of religion. It is also based on these three principles.

It spread the risk. Even as no man can take out insurance by himself, so, too, can no man be virtuous by himself. A just state has a hard time in a warring world. Religion tries to teach all people the principles on which a peaceful world can be built.

Religion cushions disaster. Funeral religion is not the highest type of religion, but it is one aspect. Rainy-day faith is produced by fair-weather practice. Rickenbacker prayed on his raft, because he learned about prayer in a religious institution. Religion gave him the cushion for his disaster.

Religion gives security of mind and soul. First, because it offers a coherent philosophy of life. No man can live normally without a point of view. Psychiatric wards are full of people for whom life has lost its meaning. Fascism, communism fill the vacuums of a pointless life. Religion gives a worthwhile view of life. It provides a touchstone for happiness. The religious way, the unselfish way, is the happy way of life. Many examples can be cited from personal experience.

Religion is insurance for happiness. And it is free. Its salesmen want no commission. It is not rationed nor does it have priorities. It is this which Isaiah would have sold as he stood in the market place hawking his wares: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye, buy, and eat; come ye, buy wine, and milk without money and without price. Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? And your labor for that which does not satisfy? Hearken diligently unto me, and eat that which is good and let your soul delight itself in fatness."

The Allegany and Garrett County Volunteer Firemen's Association, meeting yesterday at the Baltimore Pike Volunteer Fire Company, went through the formality of approving the action of the County Delegation in reporting out favorably a bill which will give the county volunteer fire companies additional funds.

This bill calls for an appropriation of $22,025 for the Allegany County volunteer fire companies in the coming fiscal year, some $6,350 more than this year. All companies except Chapel Hill and Cumberland Hose Company, the two inactive local organizations, are in line for increases.

Next meeting of the association will be held Sunday, April 12, at the Tri-Towns Fire Company in Piedmont. Twenty-three of the 31 companies in the association were represented yesterday. The Baltimore Pike Auxiliary served a luncheon after the meeting.

Firemen Approve Delegation Action

The annual fund drive of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross will begin today with Charles L. Kopp as chairman.

Mrs. Harry Beneman, chapter chairman, said the county's minimum quota this year is $35,000.

Robert L. Ebert is chairman of the Advance Gifts committee, with a quota of $11,000. Simon and Stuart Rosenbaum are co-chairmen of the Classified division which has a goal of $9,000.

The Women's Division will be directed by Mrs. William Torkington and Mrs. Holmes Cessna. It has a quota of $7,000.

Joseph Love is chairman of the National firms solicitation with a quota of $1,000, and Robert Kaplan will direct the division of Clubs and Organizations with a quota of $1,000.

The County divisions will be directed by William H. Lewis. His sub-divisions include the following chairmen and their quotas:

Post Office Will Issue Two Commemorative Stamps

The Post Office Department today will issue two new commemorative three-cent postage stamps, according to Thomas F. Conlon, local postmaster. They will be on sale at the local post office.

The two stamps are a Washington Territory commemorative stamp to be issued today through the Olympia, Wash., post office, and the Ohio Statehood commemorative stamp issued today through the Chillicothe, Ohio, post office.

The new Washington Territory stamp, green in color, portrays an early pioneer family gazing at a territorial scene embracing an expanse of water with mountain ranges rising in the distance.

The left-hand portion of the view is obscured by a centennial seal portraying a covered wagon drawn by oxen with an Indian seated in the foreground. Below the seal are depicted some of the products for which Washington has become economically important.

The Ohio Statehood stamp is brown in color. The central design of the stamp is an outline of the state of Ohio, which provides a flat-toned background for the Great Seal of the state.

Defining each side of the stamp are two dark vertical panels, enclosing a row of eight stars in each panel, representing the 16 states prior to the admission of Ohio in the Union. The 17th star, representing Ohio, appears in the top center directly over the top border of the state.

The courier will arrive here about 4 p. m. Friday and be met by Mayor Roy W. Eves. A commemorative program will be announced later.

Gibson Praises Work Of FOE At Memorial Event

Record Crowd Attends Local Lodge Service

Bus Drivers Ratify New Contract

Brief Stoppage Ends Last Night

Cumberland Transit Lines bus drivers went back to work at 7 o'clock last night after a majority of the members of Local 1110, Bus Drivers Union, AFL, voted to accept an offer submitted by the company only about 13 hours after the work stoppage began.

The contract expired at midnight Saturday and the new pact was ratified by the membership about 3:30 p. m. yesterday at a meeting at the Building and Construction Trades Council Hall on Frederick Street.

Two Cents Boost

James H. Morrison, president of Local 1110, said that the offer, submitted at a final negotiation session at 1:30 p. m. yesterday at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, will give all 38 drivers and five shop employees an across the board two cents an hour wage boost plus some five other benefits.

Guy M. Davis, proprietor of the Cumberland Transit Lines, announced shortly after the ratification that terms of the settlement of the bus stoppage involves a cost for the year of about $6,800.

Davis emphasized that his overall losses since purchasing the operation from the Potomac Edison Company four years ago are in excess of $40,000. He said he was not really able to grant the increases agreed upon. However, he added, to prevent the inconvenience which would be caused the public by a strike and in the hope that the revenues of the bus operation would improve he had finally agreed to the demands made upon him.

No Lost Pay

The brief stoppage of bus service for part of yesterday will not result in loss of pay for any of the bus drivers or shop employees involved in the dispute. One of the provisions of the final offer was that drivers and shop employees who were scheduled to work yesterday will be compensated for loss of time that day.

Because the transit company runs a light schedule on Sunday only about 15 men had been scheduled to work yesterday.

The hourly wage provision of the contract will bring the pay of drivers to $1.52 an hour and for mechanics $1.53 an hour.

Morrison also disclosed other provisions of the new contract which runs for one year, until midnight February 28, 1954.

Drivers will get an additional 10-minutes reporting time, increasing from the old contract's 10 minutes to 20 minutes. Another section gives drivers three weeks of annual vacation after 10 years service with the company. The old provision called for 15 years service before getting a third week of vacation.

Another improvement for the drivers is that they all will be entitled to a $1.50 per month for each 15,000 miles per accident bonus. During the past year, Morrison said, only a small percentage of the drivers were offered this benefit. One brand new provision is that the company will pay for the chauffeur's license for each driver. By a final agreement, the drivers decided to return to work promptly at 7 o'clock last night.

The union president expressed regrets that the work stoppage yesterday did inconvenience the public. Most seriously affected were those who depend on bus transportation to take them to church. Local taxi firms said their business yesterday was "a little" heavier than on normal Sundays.

Three Candidates To Be On Ballot In Oakland Vote

Only three candidates will be on the ballot for three city offices in the Oakland municipal election Monday, March 9. City Clerk Arthur Lawton said last night.

That means there will be no contest in this year's voting, since only three aspirants had filed for posts on the City Council when the deadline for entering the race passed at 4 p. m. Friday.

Candidates include Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, veteran councilman; Emerie Dusic, also an incumbent, and Donald M. Browning, 24-year-old newcomer to Oakland politics.

Harry F. Stemple, the only other councilman whose term expires, decided not to run for office again this year.

Oakland elects a mayor and three councilmen every even-numbered year. In the years between, three councilmen are elected. Holdovers this year are Mayor Joseph Hinebaugh and Councilmen Maurice Brookhart, Walter Hardesty and William Rees.

Miss Julia Ward, city treasurer, has filed notice of her candidacy for re-election.

Browning, who filed Friday was the last of the council candidates to enter the race. He is an Air Force veteran of World War II, having served in France. He and his father operate the Browning self-service food market in Oakland.

The city's voters will go to the polls between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. on March 9. About 600 voters are registered, but observers are expecting an extremely light turnout because of the dearth of candidates.

March Marks Beginning Of Forest Fire Danger

March arrived yesterday and with it came the controlled burning season in Maryland because of the danger of forest fires at this time of the year, according to District Forester William H. Johnson.

During March, April and May burning regulations apply only to burning within 200 feet of woodland or inflammable material that could ignite and carry fire to woodland outside the limits of incorporated towns. Uncontrolled burning of debris is prohibited at all times.

In the spring months burning is permissible only after 4 p. m. and before midnight except when the ground is covered with snow.

State law provides a number of specific protective measures for burning between 4 p. m. and midnight.

The protective measures:

- Provide sufficient help, with tools, to prevent the fire from escaping.
- Have at least one watchman on the ground until the last spark is out.
- These provisions are not necessary if there is a natural firebreak of at least 10 feet in width free of inflammable material surrounding the area to be burned.

Vision Shortcomings Cause Many Automobile Accidents

Unknown shortcomings in eyesight rank high on the list of causes of automobile accidents, Dr. William H. Engel, Jr., president of the Maryland Optometric Association, declared here yesterday in a statement issued in connection with Save Your Vision Week, March 1-7.

"We all know that we must see properly to drive safely," Dr. Engel said, "but studies covering thousands of drivers indicate that about 15 per cent of us have dangerous visual handicaps without being aware of them."

"Eyesight should be re-tested every year, or at each renewal of a driver license, so that the driver is made aware of any eyesight problems that are creeping up on him with age, or for any other reason."

Dr. Engel said that the most common visual handicap among drivers is lack of proper acuity—ability to see and focus clearly at distances from arm's length to 50 yards. This shortcoming, he said, can almost always be corrected with the proper glasses, but "night blindness," inadequate side vision, and lack of ability to judge space and distance relationships, also important to safety, are less easily corrected.

"The driver who is aware of a shortcoming will usually have it corrected, or if that is not possible, he will learn to compensate for it," Dr. Engel said. "If he knows that he is not up to par in side vision, for instance, he will make a practice of turning his head frequently to check possible danger from the side."

"Safety is not an accident, and awareness of visual handicaps is a primary requirement for greater highway safety."
